On occasion one's life is blessed with a special relationship. Over the years this is how I felt each time I met with Arnold Palmer. His support of the Legends Invitational and the Navy SEALs was always heartfelt as he genuinely inquired each year to be updated on the tournament. Equally, our presentation of the Pedestal Award and Navy SEAL Paddle were cherished honors he proudly displayed in his trophy room—being they

PEBBLE BEACH

Fall is a spectacular time of year at Pebble Beach Resorts, and we are pleased to welcome you to the 27th Annual Legends Invitational for what promises to be another unforgettable event. The Legends Invitational has become a longstanding tradition here in Pebble Beach, combining some of our favorite activities - football, golf, camaraderie and charity.

Over the next four days, football legends, Navy SEALs and amateur golfers from around the country will walk in the footsteps of some of golf's greatest players, on three of the world's finest courses. Pebble Beach Golf Links – America's No. 1 public golf course – along with Spyglass Hill and The Links at Spanish Bay will once again be the site of great Legends Invitational moments, as participants vie for the tournament title. As you compete this week, reflect on the fact that Pebble Beach and Spyglass Hill will soon co-host the 2018 U.S. Amateur, Pebble Beach will host its sixth U.S. Open Championship in June 2019, and Pebble Beach Resorts will celebrate its centennial in 2019. We are embarking on an exciting next two years!

Legends Invitational CEO John Lee and tournament director Rebecca Morrison have done a tremendous job in nurturing this event and contributing significant charity dollars. We thank them for all of their efforts. The Legends Invitational supports the Navy SEAL Museum and Trident House charitable organizations, and your presence here directly impacts these worthwhile causes. We also acknowledge Curly and Sophie Morrison, who founded this world-class gathering in 1989 and have given so much back to its participants and beneficiaries.

We hope you enjoy your experience at Pebble Beach Resorts and the Legends Invitational. We wish you continued success and great memories, and look forward to hosting you again soon!

Sincerely,

Willhom 2. Perochi

Dear Friends:

Welcome to the Legends Invitational! What a joy it is and with much gratitude we relish greeting each and every one of you to our 27th annual event. For us, it is likened to a reunion-being with close relatives, good friends and meeting new additions to our ever-growing Legends' family.

We are extremely appreciative to our corporate sponsors, IZOD, Titanium Fabrication, Jack Daniels, Pure Insurance, Distant Lands, ITO EN, AJA International, and David Herro. It is also a great honor for us to be aligned with the National Navy UDT-SEAL Museum—a revered military organization that has given so much

Through the support of our corporate sponsorships we are able to continue the Legends tradition, which began twenty-seven years ago. We also give a very special thanks to our Title Sponsor, IZOD, for their donation of the goody bags and printing of the Legends Invitational Magazine.

As always, we aim to enhance our event and hope you enjoy this year's military demonstrations presented by the Navy SEALs that will once again kick-off the tournament. In addition, we want to thank all of our participating teams for their donations in our effort to raise monies for the National Navy UDT-SEAL Museum and Trident House. All monies raised through the SEAL Museum go to support the Trident House, scholarships, funds for SEAL families in distress, and significant needs of the museum that honors their

Dear John,

I want to take this opportunity to express my profound thanks to you and the Legends Invitational for recognizing our men and women who selflessly serve in our military and their families. Additionally, the specific focus on your partnership with a very special place, the National Navy UDT-SEAL Museum, as your charitable beneficiary is extraordinary.

I have personally visited the museum and spent time with its leader, Master Chief (SEAL) Rick Kaiser, USN (ret). Rick and his team care deeply about both preserving and representing our SEAL heritage from the early years of underwater demolition in WWII to the most recent conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan, as well as the global fight against terrorists. They are doing so brilliantly.

Equally important is that the SEAL Museum honors those who have fallen, as well as supporting SEAL families through the Trident House and scholarships. We must never forget.

I know this year is the 27th Annual Legends Invitational at Pebble Beach and appreciate you opening the tournament with a "Thursday Night Reception" and "SEALs Up Close & Personal" event with military tactical demonstrations. Our SEALs are quite simply the best in the world. Having attended your 23rd Legends Invitational, I can only say what a great event and weekend it was. I am sure this year's Invitational will surpass its predecessors, especially because of who you are honoring.

I want also to thank IZOD as your title sponsor. Their support is world class, a fitting match for our SEALs.

Thanks again, John, for your dedication in honor of those who protect our freedom.

Sincerely, Ming Mule

SEAL training is tough and the job of a Navy SEAL is even tougher. In the heart of each operator is an ethic of the highest standards of personal integrity and performance, dedication to teammates and loyalty to country. SEALs possess more than physical prowess and intelligence; they have a mental toughness few can match.

FORGED BY ADVERSITY

In times of war or uncertainty there is a special breed of warrior ready to answer our Nation's call. A common man with uncommon desire to succeed. Forged by adversity, he stands alongside America's finest special operations forces to serve his country, the American people, and protect their way of life. I am that man.

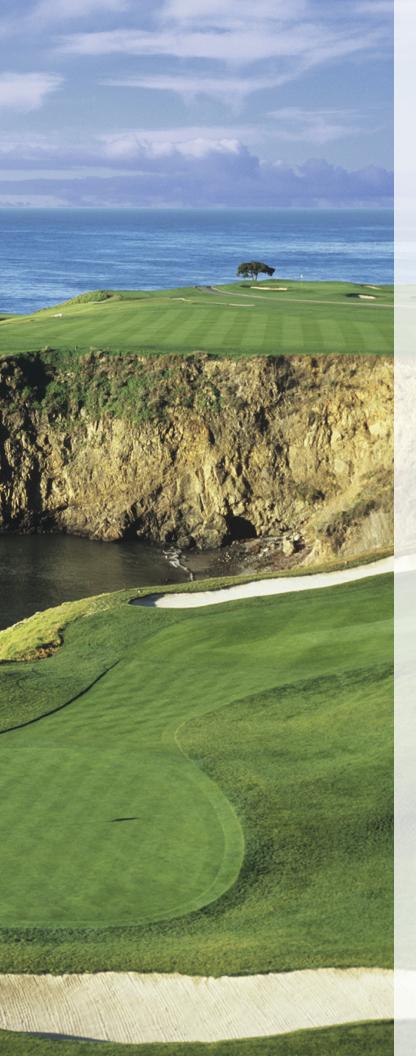

My Trident is a symbol of honor and heritage. Bestowed upon me by the heroes that have gone before, it embodies the trust of those I have sworn to protect. By wearing the Trident I accept the responsibility of my chosen profession and way of life. It is a privilege that I must earn every day. My loyalty to Country and Team is beyond reproach. I humbly serve as a guardian to my fellow Americans always ready to defend those who are unable to defend themselves. I do not advertise the nature of my work, nor seek recognition for my actions. I voluntarily accept the inherent hazards of my profession, placing the welfare and security of others before my own. I serve with honor on and off the battlefield. The ability to control my emotions and my actions, regardless of circumstance, sets me apart from other men. Uncompromising integrity is my standard. My character and honor are steadfast. My word is my bond.

We expect to lead and be led. In the absence of orders I will take charge, lead my teammates and accomplish the mission. I lead by example in all situations. I will never quit. I persevere and thrive on adversity. My Nation expects me to be physically harder and mentally stronger than my enemies. If knocked down, I will get back up, every time. I will draw on every remaining ounce of strength to protect my teammates and to accomplish our mission. I am never out of the fight.

We demand discipline. We expect innovation. The lives of my teammates and the success of our mission depend on me – my technical skill, tactical proficiency, and attention to detail. My training is never complete. We train for war and fight to win. I stand ready to bring the full spectrum of combat power to bear in order to achieve my mission and the goals established by my country. The execution of my duties will be swift and violent when required yet guided by the very principles that I serve to defend. Brave men have fought and died building the proud tradition and feared reputation that I am bound to uphold. In the worst of conditions, the legacy of my teammates steadies my resolve and silently guides my every deed. I will not fail.

A

hat originally started out as a one-day NFL Alumni tournament at Corral De Tierra Country Club in Monterey County, the Legends Invitational grew to become one of the most prestigious, exclusive three-day sports legends golf events in the United States.

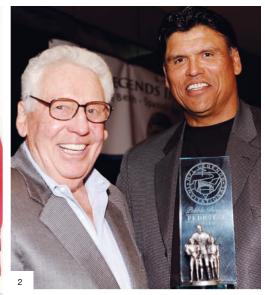

The brain child of Fred "Curly" Morrison, who organized the Alumni event along with Bob Svihus, Wayne Hawkins, Jack Kirby, John Guzik, Claude Crabb and Jim Tunney, knew the tournament would have a greater reach if it was extended to three days and included corporate America.

Running his idea past his wife Sophie, an accomplished golfer and former Woman's Club Champion at Los Angeles' Wilshire County Club, she thought the idea would work. The next step was finding a venue and with his longtime friend Paul Spengler being the Vice President of Golf at Pebble Beach Company, Curly knew exactly where to go.

Paul thought the idea was fantastic. He immediately ran it by Pebble Beach Company. Having just completed The Inn at Spanish Bay, Pebble Beach Company saw it as a great opportunity to market their new resort. They immediately gave Curly a green light.

The only snag in the package was the availability of golf courses. Pebble Beach and Spanish Bay could be a part of the deal, but Curly would have to find the third course. Quick on his feet as in his fullback days, he contacted the NCGA to lock down Poppy Hills. They readily agreed, keeping the three days of play for the tournament within the forest and Seventeen Mile Drive.

Ecstatic, Curly returned to Sophie proclaiming his success and the springboard of the proposed annual event. As with all levelheaded wives, Sophie's encouragement shifted to reality upon questioning, "Who would take care of the details?"

Any sports legends' wife will tell you, the guys love to gather to reenact the "good 'ole days", but when it comes to the specifics it's the women that step up to the plate.

Aware of Sophie's incessant necessity for details,

Curly only had one answer, "Well, you are kid!"

Pairing up to utilize their individual talents, the two embarked upon a nineteenyear journey, establishing themselves as the founders of the tournament. Sophie's only request, along with the guys gathering to have some fun, was for the wives or companions of the players to be included, making it more sociable and classy than a typical "guys" shotgun event.

Now that the venue was in place with a "Crosby Clambake" theme, two best-ball format teaming celebrity sports captains, corporate foursomes and American Airlines on board as sponsor to fly in the celebrities; all that was needed was a name. As the story goes, that part was easy. Due to most of the NFL players believing they were "legends" in their own time, but more importantly in their own mind, naming it the " NFL Legends Invitational" was a natural pick.

In truth, little did they know how appropriate the name would come to represent the essence of the event. Calling upon his NFL buddies, Curly quickly collected a roster of NFL Greats — Otto Graham, Johnny Unitas, George Blanda, Joe Kapp, Marion Montley, Ray Nitchke, Tom Fears, and Hugh McElheney, to name a few. These were some of the names that built the foundation of what current day football would grow to be. Those who played for the love of the game, took trains to games, and worked off-season jobs to support their families so they could continue to play. It was upon these former players' shoulders that football grew to be America's favorite sport.

In honoring these players' contributions, Sophie and Curly created an award for what they did both on and off the field, by excelling in the sport and aiding their fellow man. They named it the Pedestal Award because when crediting someone with accolades you place them above the norm on a platform.

It was with this spirit, the love of sport, the love of being with good friends, and the love of having a good time that the first annual NFL Legends Invitational was launched in 1990. The concept was an immediate hit with word of the tournament quickly spreading throughout the corporate world as a place to build client relationships or gift employees with incentives.

After the first few years Pebble Beach Company recognized the winner they had in hosting the event. They offered the Del Monte course to keep the tournament on the Pebble Beach courses for all three days. That course was eventually replaced by Spyglass Hill in the late nineties and other than the AT&T the NFL Legends Invitational became the resorts' most prestigious event.

Along with success came the desire to share good fortune. Taking part of the profits, the tournament gave money to the Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital and The Children's Miracle Network during its first few years. Then donated for 15 years to the Boys and Girls Club of Monterey Country, including a college scholarship fund for one of its students.

1995 marked the year of the first "Legends Invitational Playbook" – a small informational booklet of the tournament, including the teams, tournament format, award winners, captains and pairings. It was more of a memento for their guests. It was called the playbook after the playbook the pro football teams developed and used to prepare for the football season.In 2008 the Pro Football Hall of Fame attended the tournament with the idea of becoming a sponsor. Simultaneously, Sophie and Curly entered into conversations with John Lee, one of their longtime returning guests of the tournament, about purchasing the event.

The next year, 2009, marked John Lee as the new owner with Rebecca Morrison taking over as Tournament Director. The name was changed to "Legends Invitational" due to other sports greats coming on board as celebrity captains. PVH Corp. and the Pro Football Hall of Fame were added along with American Airlines, the original sponsor of the tournament, as corporate sponsors.

John created the Sophie and Curly Morrison Legends Award, honoring them as its first recipient for their enduring graciousness and commitment to the community. Pebble Beach Company showcases the award in the trophy case at The Inn at Spanish Bay.

27 Years and Still Going Strong!

Written by Rebecca Morrison

The greatest testament of any golf tournament is in the longevity of the event. Many tournaments are created, but it is a rare few that make it to their 25th year. That feat in of itself is a tribute to the success and evolution of the Legends Invitational in being the longest running privately owned tournament at the Pebble Beach Resorts.

Fashioned in the vein of the Crosby Clambake, where camaraderie, good-old-fashion fun and memories reined, the Legends Invitational has even outlived its likened predecessor, "The Crosby".

Having all the basics of a successful event—NFL and Sports Greats Celebrity Captains; three of the most prestigious golf courses in the world; Pebble Beach, Spyglass Hill, and Spanish Bay, as well as being known as the best corporate client-building event in the country—a challenge arose on how to enhance it in 2009 when John Lee purchased the tournament.

As the new CEO and owner, it was the dawning of a new Legends Invitational era with John's vision to grow the well-known successful tournament into the most exclusive and finest invitation-only golf event in the country. Hiring Rebecca Morrison as the Tournament Director and re-branding the tournament's image, John took to task the realization of his vision.

Together, John and Rebecca created a marketing strategy using both traditional and an e-commerce technique to expand the tournament's clientele. By the time they were finished with a new logo, sponsorship brochures and a marketing campaign, The Pro Football Hall of Fame requested to be an official sponsor of the Legends > Invitational. At the same time, PVH Corp under the direction of then President, Allen Sirkin, Corporate Officer, Ken Duane and Senior Executive Mike Kelly, also joined on as the Title Sponsor of the event.

These new sponsor additions contributed their resources and collaboration to aid in enhancing the event. The addition of PVH brought forth a world-renown clothing line and gifts for the Legend's guests. Whereas, The Pro Football Hall of Fame opened doors adding Hall of Famers to expand the Legends' pre-established roster of Hall of Fame players as Celebrity Captains. Including, Lynn Swann—the legendary Pittsburgh Steeler—as the 2009 Legends Invitational Pedestal Award Honoree.

In 2010, the Legends Invitational celebrated its 20th Anniversary and what a year it was! Jerry Rice, in his signature year of being chosen as "The Greatest Player in the History of the NFL", received the 20th Legends Invitational Pedestal Award. Allen Sirkin, Ken Duane, and Mike Kelly brought Manny Chirico, the CEO of PVH Corp. to experience the tournament.

From the suggestion of PVH Marketing and Advertising Executive Vice President, Mike Kelly, the traditional Legends Playbook morphed into the Legends Magazine—a deeply appreciated new momentum for the Legends' guests. Entertainment was added to the Monday Night Awards Event and an open bar at all three tournament nightly soirées was greatly enjoyed by all.

In 2011, the celebrated St. Louis Rams running back and Pro Football Hall of Famer, Marshall Faulk, was added to the Legend's roster as a Celebrity Captain. Legends longtime participant, good friend and Hall of Famer, Ted Hendricks was the 21st Pedestal Award Honoree and the tournaments charitable efforts increased its contribution to the Boys and Girls Club of Monterey County to the $86,000 mark.

In 2012, PVH Corp designated IZOD as the tournament's Title Sponsor with a commitment to another two years. Hall of Fame and Minnesota Viking great, Randall McDaniel, received the 22nd Pedestal Award and John awarded a special honorable Pedestal Award to Arnold Palmer for his longtime support of the Legends Tournament and the Pebble Beach Resorts continued venue host of the event.

2013 brought Brent Willey and his company, Titanium Fabrication, on board as a sponsor and former Chairman of the Joint Chief of Staff, Admiral Mike Mullen, attended as a special guest. But more importantly, and in keeping with its "Crosby Clambake" tradition, the Legends Invitational's ever-expanding sponsor partnerships and guests were growing into relationships of working with good friends.

Each year, with doors opening to the Friday Night Reception, it felt like a family reunion of everyone coming together to see one another and make new friends with additional guests. No better testimonial can be said than what is experienced by everyone on Opening Night.

Upon taking over the management reins of the tournament John and Rebecca quickly learned it takes a tremendous amount of effort and work to create a successful event. Both recognized they couldn't do it without the valued support of their Title Sponsor, IZOD and contributing sponsor, Titanium Fabrication. Nor could it be accomplished without the backing of the Pebble Beach Resorts' prominent staff. All who have become close friends and a part of the Legends Invitational family.

Much can be said of these wonderful colleagues who have aided in John's vision to augment and expand the event. But, not enough words can describe the appreciation felt by John and Rebecca from their longtime support of the Legends Invitational Celebrity Captains. From such Legendary NFL Hall of Fame Greats as Otto Graham, George Blanda, Don Shula and Merlin Olsen to welcoming new additions; Dick Anderson, Jim Hart, and Hall of Famers, Eric Dickerson, Chris Doleman, Marcus Allen, Tim Brown, Mike Haynes and 2013 Pedestal Award Honoree Matt Birk.

2014 marked another turning point in the evolution of the event and perhaps one of the most significant. John, as a proud member on the Board of Directors for The National Navy SEAL Museum, instinctively recognized the advantage to grow the tournament while benefiting the SEALs initiatives to a greater prominence through a partnership. From this alliance came a great honor to be aligned with such an extraordinary military group that had sacrificed so much for our country without any expectation of a return.

Along the same lines of the SEALs dedication to the nation, John and the Legends Invitational became committed to raise monies to recognize fallen SEAL brothers and aid SEAL families through the National Navy SEAL Museum initiatives: supporting significant needs for the museum and its Trident House Charities, including college scholarships, and funds for SEALs' families in times of distress.

In keeping with his vision, John enhanced the tournament's Friday opening event by creating a "Navy SEALs UP Close & Personal" afternoon reception and evening banquet. It was a first for Pebble Beach with Navy SEALs parachuting out of airplanes, demonstrating helicopter insertions and K-9 MWD tactics on the first fairway of The Inn at Spanish Bay.

Hosted by a newly acquired sponsor, Jack Daniels, guests and Pebble Beach Resort staff, including CEO William Perocchi, gathered around their private fire pits at the Troon and Fairway patios to watch the military demonstrations, narrated by the Museum's Assistant Director, Master Chief Ken Corona. Then, trailing into the ballroom behind a Bagpiper, the 2014 Annual Legends Invitational traditionally began with the opening of the ballroom banquet doors.

That evening, emceed by the Museum's Executive Director, Master Chief Rick Kaiser spoke about his SEAL experiences and introduced guest speaker, Vice Admiral Bob Harward. The evening broke up with guests getting the opportunity to interact with the SEALs, NFL and Sports Greats Celebrity Captains, including new additions: Olympic Gold Medalist, Dan Jansen, JR Celski and Golf Pro, Karen Palacios-Jansen. The Gala Sunday Night Dinner was designated as the "NFL Up Close & Personal" event, emceed by Pro Football Hall of Fame, Miami Dolphin, Nick Buoniconti. Fellow

Hall of Fame players, Anthony Munoz, Mike Haynes, and Eric Dickerson joined Nick on the stage to share their NFL experiences and how being a professional football player influenced their lives.

The 2014 Legends Invitational Pedestal Award was given to Wayne Kostroski, founder of the Taste of the NFL, whose tireless work has distributed more than $22 million to food banks across America to end hunger. The evening auction for the National Navy SEAL Museum and Trident House Charities raised $250,000 from the Legends guests.

Upon being closer to his vision realized, John hired for the 2014 event an Emmy Award winning videographer, Kerry McNally and social media golf expert Stacy Solomon to aid he and Rebecca in their marketing campaign. The effort paid off with a professionally produced Legends Invitational video, several national radio interviews, local TV news coverage and a Legends Invitational YouTube channel marketing the tournament.

Upon completion of our 25th Anniversary event with the Legends Invitational being touted as the most exclusive and finest invitational-only tournament in the country, the true testament of its success is in its returning sponsors and guests. We are most grateful to our Title Sponsor, IZOD for their seven years of support and commitment through 2020.

The event's contributing sponsors Titanium Fabrication, Jack Daniels, David Herro, and AJA International returned with the additions of Pure Insurance, and Deerpath Capital in 2016. In addition, AJA International and its Marlee Foundation has donated to date $222,550 through the Ernest and Gisela Hale Scholarship Fund to children of U.S. Special Operations Command members. For his charitable contributions Will Hale, of AJA International and the Marlee Foundation, was awarded the 2016 Legends Invitational Pedestal Award.

Along with the above expansions of sponsors, the Legends Invitational also added in 2016 the following sponsors groups: ITO EN, Distant Lands Coffee, US Best Repair Service, One Shield, Wells Real Estate Fund, Kerry Whitaker-Townsend and Mark Christopher Auto Center.

As we approach our 2017 event, we are honored to host four Medal of Honor Recipients: Ed Byers, Jack Jacobs, Thomas Norris and Michael Thornton. In addition to our Medal of Honor Recipient attendees, two Olympic swimming medal winners: Nathan Adrian and Conor Dwyer, both who attended in 2016, are returning this year to be part of our Celebrity Captain roster.

This year Titanium Fabrication, Jack Daniels, David Herro, ITO EN, Distant Lands and Pure Insurance continued their support as contributing sponsors. Two new guests, Ted Grosebeck and Joe Urbinati joined One Shield, Wells Real Estate Fund and Kerry Whitaker-Townsend as participating sponsors.

Most significantly for our 2017 event and from henceforth, the Legends Invitational will dominate all tees times on each of the three courses with all tournament guests exclusively playing a single course for its three days. Topping it off with the final Awards Banquet held at the esteemed, privately owned Pebble Beach Club on the shores of the Monterey Bay.

All this has been accomplished in a short eight years taking the Legends Invitational to its 27th Annual event. Seeing what has been achieved through John's vision, committed resolve, and unrelenting efforts, it begs the question: What will the next 25 years bring?

U.S. Navy SEAL History

Origins of Naval Special Warfare-WWII

The origins of Navy SEALs actually began with specially organized maritime commando units during World War II, where legacy capabilities were adopted and remain embodied in today's SEAL Teams.

Amphibious Training Base, Little Creek, VA

During preparation for amphibious warfare operations in the Chesapeake Bay, two special-mission units were formed almost simultaneously at the Amphibious Training Base (ATB), Little Creek, Norfolk, VA in late August 1942. Each was to perform specific missions in Operation TORCH – the allied invasion of North Africa the following November; however, there is no evidence that either knew about the other or their assigned tasks during this period.

Amphibious Scouts and Raiders (S&R)

Amphibious Scouts and Raiders (Joint) were created specifically to reconnoiter prospective landing beaches and to lead assault forces to the correct beaches under cover of darkness. The unit was led by U.S. Army 1st Lieutenant Lloyd Peddicord as commanding officer, and Navy Ensign John Bell as executive officer. Navy chief petty officers and sailors came from the boat pool at ATB, Solomons, Maryland and Army Raider personnel came from the 3rd and 9th Infantry Divisions. They trained at Little Creek until embarking for the North Africa campaign the following November. Operation TORCH was launched in November 1942 off the Atlantic coast of French Morocco in North Africa. One mission, under Army 1st Lieutenant Willard G. Duckworth, involved the launching of kayaks from the submarine USS Barb (SS-220). This was the first U.S. submarine hosted operation of World War II involving specially trained reconnaissance personnel. Their mission was to infiltrate to a location off the Jette Principal at Safi, Morocco under cover of darkness to safely guide the destroyers USS Cole (DD-155) and USS Bernadou (DD-153) to near-shore gunnery positions.

S&R men also conducted pre-assault operations at Normandy several weeks before D-Day, 6 June 1944, and at the invasion of Southern France later that August. After that the need for Scout and Raider capabilities in Europe ended; no other amphibious operations were envisioned in that theater. Many of the men returned to Fort Pierce to serve as instructors at the Scouts and Raiders School. Army personnel were returned to their parent units, and many navy men were reassigned to sea duty or given the opportunity to join the Pacific units.

S&R teams performed a variety of actions and activities to guide ships and small craft throughout Operation TORCH, often under withering fire. They performed so admirably that all Scout boat officers were awarded the Navy Cross Medal. The Scout and Raider school was relocated to ATB, Fort Pierce, FL in February 1943, where, in the following July, it became an all Navy school.

S&R operations in the Mediterranean and Pacific Theaters also provided the framework for legacy capabilities now accomplished by today's NSW Special Warfare Combat-Craft Crewmen (SWCC) operators.

Special Mission Naval Demolition Unit

Also in August 1942 at ATB, Little Creek, a specialized naval demolition team was formed with two officers and 17 enlisted men. They were led by Lieutenant Mark Starkweather (senior in command) and Lieutenant James Darroch. All were trained Navy salvage divers brought in from Hawaii. Their crash course included: demolitions, commando tactics, cable cutting, and rubber boat training. Their singular mission during Operation TORCH was to remove the cabled boom blocking the Wadi Sebou River, which spilled into the Atlantic Ocean along the west coast of French Morocco. Removal of this boom would allow USS Dallas (DD-199) to proceed up the river and train her guns on the Port Lyautey airdrome in preparation for attack by Army Rangers that were previously embarked aboard Dallas.

The operation was launched just before H-Hour on 8 November 1942. The men operated at night from an open Higgins boat in very heavy seas and under direct enemy machine-gun fire. Several of the men were badly injured in the rough seas, and the first attempt was aborted. During a second attempt on the night of 9 November, they accomplished their task. Their mission was so demanding and critical to the success of the invasion that every demolition man in the operation was awarded the Navy Cross Medal. This special-mission naval demolition unit was disbanded once the men returned from Africa.

The Naval Demolition Project

On 6 May 1943, the "Naval Demolition Project" was directed by the Chief of Naval Operations "to meet a present and urgent requirement." The CNO's directive outlined a two-phase project.

The first phase began with a letter to the Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks directing dispatch of eight officers and 30 enlisted men for duty with the Operational Naval Demolition Unit and Naval Demolition Unit Number No. 1, which was to be established at the ATB, Solomons, Maryland. Commander John C. Daniel was selected as Officer in Charge. Six officers and 18 enlisted men reported for training at Solomons on 14 May, and all came from the Seabee training camp at Camp Peary (Williamsburg), Virginia.

Led by Navy Lieutenant Fred Wise, these men were given a four-week course of instruction and sent immediately to participate in Operation HUSKEY, the Allied invasion of Sicily, which occurred during the following July and August.

CDR Daniel submitted a letter report about this new capability on 27 May 1943. His report, which proposed an outline for the second phase, recommended an organization, outlined a detailed core training syllabus, and recommended a list of equipment need to supply an operational combat demolition unit. He further recommended that the training program be detached from Maryland and relocated to ATB, Fort Pierce, Florida to take advantage of good weather for year-round training.

Naval Combat Demolition Units (NCDUs)

On 6 June 1943, the Naval Combat Demolition Unit (NCDU) training school was established at Ft. Pierce, Florida and organized by LCDR Draper Kauffman. He assembled volunteers from the Bomb and Mine Disposal School, Washington, DC (which he organized), and the Civil Engineering Corps and Naval Construction Corps (Seabees) School at Camp Peary near Williamsburg, Virginia to fill the first training classes.

LCDR Kauffman is given credit for instituting the infamous "Hell Week," a period of intense instruction that remains a fundamental component in modern-day Basic Underwater Demolition/SEAL (BUD/S) training program. By the end of Ft. Pierce training there was an overall attrition rate of 65-75%, much like it remains today in BUD/S.

In some accountings, LCDR Kauffman has also been given credit for the establishment of the Underwater Demolition Teams (UDTs) in the Pacific during WWII, but this is not factual. The UDTs were formed in December 1943, while LCDR Kauffman was still at Fort Pierce. He left his training position at Fort Pierce in April 1944 to become commanding officer of UDT-5 in Maui, Territory of Hawaii.

Each NCDU was comprised of one officer and five enlisted sailors to make up a single boat crew. The first NCDU Class graduated in September 1943; after several months of arduous training with primary emphasis on demolition of submerged beach obstacles (submerged in a surf zone). Seven units were dispersed to the Third and Fifth Fleets in the Pacific, three units went to the Eighth Fleet in the Mediterranean, and only one unit went to England. By April 1944, however, a total of 34 NCDUs had collected in England in preparation for Operation OVERLORD, the amphibious landing at Normandy.

D-Day – The Bloody Sands of Normandy

For the assault at Normandy, each six-man NDCU was augmented with three U.S. Navy seamen brought in from Scotland to assist in handling demolitions. The resulting nine-man NCDUs were later integrated with U.S. Army combat engineers to form 13-man gap assault teams.

During the assault on June 6, 1944 NCDU men suffered 37 killed and 71 wounded, a casualty rate of 52%; making D-Day the bloodiest single day in the history of Naval Special Warfare; although not one NCDU man was lost to improper handling of explosives.

The NCDUs at Omaha Beach were awarded the Presidential Unit Citation; one of only three presented for military actions at Normandy. The men at Utah Beach were recipients of the only Navy Unit Commendation awarded for actions on that awful day.

The Invasion of Southern France

NCDU men were engaged in combat only once more in Europe, and this was during the invasion of Southern France in August 1944. First codenamed ANVIL and later DRAGOON, several of the NCDUs from Utah Beach were augmented with new units from Fort Pierce to participate in the last amphibious assault of the war in Europe. Once operations ceased in Europe, all Fort Pierce trained men were sent to the Pacific and assigned to Underwater Demolition Teams.

NCDU men contributed greatly to the war in Europe, and their efforts are often overshadowed by the Pacific UDTs. Indeed, in some historical accountings, it has been written that UDTs performed work at Normandy and Southern France, however, during WWII the UDTs operated only in the Pacific.

Moreover, NCDU men have often been referred to as "frogmen" by some authors and historians; however, in those early days swimming was only a test and a method of physical training. The men wore full combat dress, and were taught to operate stealthily at night and during pre-dawn hours by wading in surf and carrying explosives to obstacles from rubber boats.

MacArthur's Frogmen

Many of the early Fort Pierce-trained NCDUs were deployed to the Pacific Theater of Operations. NCDU-1 went to Alaska in August 1943 to participate in the Aleutian Islands Campaign– before actually finishing their formal training class. These operations were a struggle over the Aleutian Islands, which were then a part of the Alaska Territory. The NCDU men were never engaged, since the Japanese had already departed the islands. They were subsequently transferred to Waimanalo, Territory of Hawaii to be embedded with the provisional UDT-1.

NCDU-2, NCDU-3, NCDU-19, NCDU-20, NCDU-21, and NCDU-24 went to the Southwest Pacific, and remained together for the war's duration (the only NCDUs never to be subsumed into a UDT). LTjg Frank Kaine was the leader of this group, which later became known as "MacArthur's Frogmen."

NCDU-4 and NCDU-5 also went to the Southwest Pacific. They were the first Fort Pierce men to actually be committed to battle in the Pacific, when they operated with the 4th U.S. Marines at Green Island and Emirau Island in the Bismarck Archipelago of the South Pacific at New Guinea. These men were eventually returned to Hawaii and assigned duty with the UDTs.

Special Services Unit ONE (SSU-1)

A second and lesser-known group of Scouts and Raiders, code-named Special Services Unit One (SSU-1), was established in the Pacific on July 13, 1943. SSU-1 was a joint and combined international force, with personnel from Australia and the U.S. Army, Navy, and Marine Corps. They were trained in martial arts, hand to hand combat, map making, rubber-craft operations, jungle survival training, Pidgin English, underwater coral formations, and sea-creatures recognition.

Their operations, actions, and activities began in September 1943 at Finschafen, New Guinea, where they conducted near-shore and in-land reconnaissance operations; often with indigenous personnel. Similar operations were carried out at Gasmata, Arawe, Cape Gloucester, and the eastern and southern coasts of New Britain; all without loss of personnel.

The focus of this organization was much different than their Atlantic counterparts, who conducted pre-assault reconnaissance and guided assault waves ashore. SSU-1 collected intelligence and trained and operated with indigenous personnel in the conduct of guerrilla-warfare missions. They were later designated the 7th Amphibious Scouts and organized under staff intelligence sections; somewhat along the lines of their Atlantic counterparts.

Sino-American Cooperative Organization (SACO)

Many Scout and Raider personnel returning from Europe were given special assignment with the U.S. Naval Group in China, headed by Captain (later Admiral) Milton "Mary" Miles. He and his Chinese counterpart set up the Sino-American Cooperative Organization (SACO) to train, equip, and direct guerrilla forces against the Japanese occupation of China. To help bolster the work of SACO, the Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Ernest J. King ordered 120 officers and 900 men trained for "Amphibious Roger" at the Scout and Raider School at Ft. Pierce.

Amphibious Roger was a cover name for Navy personnel being groomed to support SACO and conduct raids on the Yangtze River. Many of these men never made it to China because the war ended. Those who did were used to train Chinese guerrilla forces and conduct reconnaissance operations with them until the end of the war. They were also tasked to locate and survey prospective landing beaches for a potential invasion of the Chinese mainland, report on Japanese ship movement, and provide weather reports to the fleet. They were later glamorized as the "Rice Paddy Navy."

Underwater Demolition Teams (UDTs)

On 22 November 1943, during the Tarawa landing at the Gilbert Islands, a chain of 16 atolls and coral islands in the South Pacific Ocean, a submerged reef caused amphibious landing craft to founder far offshore, resulting in the loss of hundreds of U.S. Marines from enemy fire and drowning. After that experience, Admiral Kelley Turner, Commander of the 5th Amphibious Force, directed that 30 officers and 150 enlisted men be moved to Waimanalo ATB (on the "big island" of Hawaii) to form the nucleus of a reconnaissance and demolition training program. It is here that the UDTs of the Pacific were born.

The first UDT group became UDT-1 and UDT-2, "provisional" UDTs with strengths of about fourteen officers and seventy enlisted men each. They saw their first action on 31 January 1944 in the attacks on Kwajalein and Roy-Namur during Operation FLINTLOCK in the Marshall Islands. Following FLINTLOCK, the UDT men returned to establish a naval combat demolition training and experimental base on a beach near ATB, Kamaol on the island of Maui.

Between December 1944 and August 1945, UDT men saw action across the Pacific in every major amphibious landing, including Eniwetok, Saipan, Guam, Tinian, Angaur, Ulithi, Pelilui, Leyte, Lingayen Gulf, Zambales, Iwo Jima, Okinawa, Labuan, Brunei Bay, and Borneo. On 4 July 1945 at Balikpapan on Borneo, UDT-11 and UDT-18 spearheaded one of the last and least-recorded offensive actions of the war, where they performed their now classic pre-assault reconnaissance and demolition operations.

A memorial to the founding of the UDT is being built Bellows Air Force Station near the original Amphibious Training Base (ATB) Waimanalo.

Invasion of Japan

During June 1945, arrangements were being made to send the existing 28 UDTs to ATB Oceanside, California for a month-long period of cold-water training in preparation for the Japan invasion. Training was to begin on 15 August 1945. During this period, a new command organization was authorized, when the collection of teams at Oceanside was designated a UDT Flotilla, with two subordinate UDT Squadrons. Captain (later Admiral) Robert H. Rodgers served in the dual capacity of Commander, Underwater Demolition Flotilla and Commander, Underwater Demolition Teams. Under him were Underwater Demolition Squadrons ONE and TWO, each with a command staff. USS Hollis (APD-66) served as command ship for the Flotilla, and USS Blessman (APD-48) and USS Laning (APD-55) were designated as Squadron flagships. Even today, this remains the largest single Naval Special Warfare task organization gathered under one commander for combat operations.

Training at Oceanside was abruptly curtailed after President Harry S. Truman ordered the use of nuclear weapons at Hiroshima, Japan on 6 August 1945 and at Nagasaki, Japan on 9 August. With a Japanese peace offer on 10 August, 20 of the UDTs in training on the west coast were alerted, and with the Japanese surrender on 14 August, they were ordered to proceed to the forward area for occupation duties.

Post-War UDTs

Thirty UDTs were organized during World War II. UDT-1 and UDT-2 were disbanded almost as quickly as they were formed, there were at most 28 teams at any one time. All teams were trained at Fort Pierce except UDT-1 and UDT-2 (the provisional teams), and UDT-14, UDT-16, and UDT-17, which were made up largely of fleet volunteers, all trained in Hawaii.

Four 50-man teams were established during the post-war period. UDT-1 and UDT-3 were home ported at ATB, Coronado, CA, and UDT-2 and UDT-4 were sent to ATB, Little Creek, Norfolk, VA. All were organized under Amphibious Forces Pacific and Atlantic respectively. These were the only WWII maritime commando units to survive doctrinally after the war and thus, provided a direct lineage to the modern-day SEAL Teams.

Office of Strategic Services Maritime Unit

Undoubtedly the most influential World War II legacy unit that would eventually affect the capabilities of the Underwater Demolition Teams, and subsequently the U.S. Navy SEAL Teams, was a joint-service maritime component of the Office of Strategic Services (OSS). Many of its capabilities were later adopted by the post-war UDTs, and many of the same capabilities can be found in today's SEAL Teams.

On January 20, 1943, a Maritime Section was established within the Special Operations Branch of OSS, with responsibility for planning covert infiltration operations from the sea. On June 10, 1943 the Special Operations Branch was reorganized and the Maritime Unit (MU) was established with branch status. Its responsibilities included planning and coordinating the clandestine infiltration of agents, supplying resistance groups, engaging in maritime sabotage, and developing special equipment for operations from the sea.

OSS MU pioneered U.S. capabilities in maritime sabotage through use of special-boat infiltration techniques and tactical combat diving using flexible swim fins and facemasks, closed-circuit diving equipment, submersible vehicles, and limpet mines. These capabilities were adopted by the UDTs in 1947, and became the hallmark of SEALs lasting through the modern day. OSS MU operations in the Mediterranean and China-Burma-India Theaters also provided the framework for legacy capabilities now accomplished by NSW SWCC operators and resident in the NSW Special Boat Teams.

The History Behind The National Navy UDT-SEAL Museum

In early 1943, the Navy took command of portions of the barrier islands off of Florida's East Coast and established the U.S. Naval Amphibious Training Base (USNATB), Fort Pierce. Navy Scouts & Raiders (S&Rs), Naval Combat Demolition Units (NCDUs), and Underwater Demolition Teams (UDTs), the forerunners of today's Navy SEALS, were trained at this location.

The Fort Pierce location was invaluable, as it provided the perfect environment for experimental testing of techniques and equipment. The barrier islands were divided by a deep-water inlet that allowed passage of oceangoing vessels. Tents for trainees were constructed at the southern end of the beach, where a large portion of the amphibious training took place.

The first NCDU class commenced in July of 1943 under Draper L. Kauffman, considered "The Father of Demolition". After observing the Scouts & Raiders' rigorous training regimen, Kauffman condensed their eight-week training program into a single week and incorporated it into the NCDU training program. "Hell Week" is still the inaugural training precedent that stands today in BUD/S (Basic Underwater Demolition/ SEAL). The training so difficult, it claims the same attrition rate presently as it did in the Forties–up to 75%. In April of 1944, CDR Kauffman commanded the newly formed UDT-5 in the Pacific.

The U.S. Naval Amphibious Training Base, Fort Pierce closed in 1946, but not before more than 140,00 men received revolutionary training. 3,500 of these men were NCDUs. After World War II, life resumed as before to the area. With continued growth and an increase in tourism, there were virtually no signs that Fort Pierce had ever been the site of a vital naval training base during the war.

That changed in1981 when several original UDT members reunited to recount stories and share memories of their training days. These forever Frogmen emphatically agreed to begin encouraging community officials to discuss a way to preserve these memories and educate the public about the integral role Fort Pierce played in the war effort. Of primary concern, of course, was the desire to honor the service of the men who trained at the USNATB, the birthplace of the Frogman.

After months of deliberation, it was decided a museum would best serve this purpose. A committee was formed, comprised of about 20 volunteers, including a handful of these enthusiastic Frogmen. An existing but vacant building, the Fort Pierce Museum, was suggested for the proposed war museum and negotiations began with the State. Since Fort Pierce was the only site for training Navy Frogmen in World War II, the UDT theme was presented and accepted.

The Navy SEAL Museum, named to include today's elite SEAL Teams formally established by the U.S. Navy under the direction of President John F. Kennedy in 1962, opened its doors on Veterans Day in 1985, with hundreds of World War II Frogmen in attendance.

The Museum has grown tremendously in the three decades since its inception in the mid-Eighties. What began as a humble building with a handful of dedicated artifacts from a few former Frogmen of World War II has morphed into a contemporary, interactive experience. Boasting one of only two Blackhawk Helicopters in museum captivity, a Mark V Special Operations Craft, and the Captain Phillips' Maersk Alabama lifeboat, the Navy SEAL Museum is home to some of the most unique artifacts around. The Museum was recognized with the prestigious distinction of a National Museum in 2009.

In the last year, the Museum has completely renovated its west wing to feature the contemporary and interactive Cold War Gallery. With a timeline that travels back in reverse chronology, beginning with the year 2000 and ending in 1945, this new gallery offers a glimpse into the countless covert operations the Navy SEALs spearheaded during The Cold War, showcasing the impressive capabilities this highly adaptive Special Operations Force has employed through time.

Presently undergoing additional remodeling in its original building, the Museum is transforming the World War II Gallery. This newest gallery will focus on the foundational history of SEAL predecessors and the fundamental need to establish specialized units in an increasingly hostile and changing world. Beginning in 1941 with America's entry into WWII, visitors will experience stories of the crucial operations in which the first Frogmen participated through 1945. Artifacts, photographs, and exhibits will provide guests with a greater understanding of the essential role these courageous men fulfilled during the Second World War.

The only museum dedicated to preserving the legacy of the Navy SEALs, the Navy SEAL Museum also hosts a Memorial Wall, of utmost importance to this heritage, naming the 294 men who have died in training and times of war since the origin of Frogmen. The Memorial Wall is a sacred monument for the fallen and a humbling reminder of sacrifice for the living.

Like the Frogmen of the Forties to the SEAL Teams of the New Millennium, the Navy SEAL Museum is constantly evolving to maintain its edge and carry forth its mission. While the warriors of this elite fighting unit have a tactical mission to maintain homeland security, the Museum is dedicated to educating the public about this Special Operations Force's invaluable role, and caring for the Navy SEAL community through the Trident House Charities Program.

"Brave men have fought and died building the proud tradition and feared reputation that I am bound to uphold. In the worst of conditions, the legacy of my teammates steadies my resolve and silently guides my every deed. I will not fail."

The National Navy UDT-SEAL Museum is the only museum dedicated solely to the collection, preservation, and interpretation of materials—objects, images, and publications—that document the United States Navy Underwater Demolition Teams, Scouts & Raiders, Naval Combat Demolition Units, Office of Strategic Services Maritime Units, and SEALs. In Fort Pierce, Florida, birthplace of the Navy frogman, The Museum promotes public education by offering visitors the opportunity to explore Navy SEAL history in an atmosphere of respect and honor.

TRIDENT HOUSE CHARITIES PROGRAM

The Trident House Charities Program is the heart and soul of the Navy SEAL Museum. Three pillars of support to the families of Naval Special Warfare personnel are provided by the Museum through the generous donations of dedicated patrons.

The Trident House and the Renewal Coalition

A tranquil waterfront residence located on the Indian River Lagoon in Sebastian, Florida, the Trident House serves as a critical and complimentary respite for the families of U.S. Navy SEALs and all Special Operations Forces who need a break and an opportunity to reconnect with their loved ones. The fully equipped retreat is a powerful de-stressor for our heroes who need it most. The Museum has partnered with the Renewal Coalition in Jupiter, Florida to extend its reach into the Special Operations Forces Community, providing additional accommodations for respite and retreat.

The Navy SEAL Museum Scholarship Program

The Navy SEAL Museum awards scholarships to children of Special Operations on an annual basis. Based on merit and academic achievement, scholarships are given in various amounts. The Marlee Foundation works in partnership with The Navy SEAL Museum to help veterans and their children. The sacrifices Special Operations Forces families make are immeasurable, warranting recognition and additional support.

Family Support

Family support comes in various forms. The Navy SEAL Museum supports everything from surviving children's and parents' camps to direct assistance for medical or academic needs not covered by other SEAL support programs. The Museum stands in the gap to ensure no one is left behind.

Help the National Navy UDT-SEAL Museum preserve the history and heritage of the Navy SEALs and their predecessors while honoring their fallen at the Navy SEAL Memorial and caring for their families through the Trident House Charities Program. The Museum and Memorial are not federally funded. As a not-for-profit organization, the Museum and its programs rely on the generous gifts of supporters who want to express gratitude to the Navy SEALs and value their immeasurable contributions to protecting the American way of life.

The Ernest and Gisela Hale 2017 Scholarships

Scholarship Background Information

Gisela W. Hale grew up as a German civilian child during WWII, surviving Allied bombings and having to eat beechnuts, horse heads and liverwurst cut with sawdust to survive. After the war she went to work for the American military in a secretarial capacity. Everything she earned went to send her older brother to a university. When she married my father, CWO4 Ernest L. Hale (veteran of WWII, Korea and Vietnam), she followed him around the world for his military tours and doggedly pursued her own higher education achieving a B.A. from Wayne State University, a Masters from Boston University, and finally her Ph.D. from Boston College. Both of my parents are now deceased and buried at Arlington National Cemetery. I believe that offering a scholarship in their names would be a fitting way to honor their dedication to service for one's country and to the pursuit of education. By making this funding available, we hope to say thank you in a small way to those military families of Special Forces Members that have given so very much to us all.

2017 APPLICATIONS – ESSAY QUESTIONS: The thirty one 2017 applications were extensive and included four essay questions. After reading just a few of these 124 essays it became crystal clear that this program is very much needed and that these children are especially deserving of our support. Below are four of the essays from our applicants. Please see for yourself:

Essay 1:

Question: The one animal that I have encountered that has most deeply influenced my life and why?

Title: Hawkeye By: Samantha B.

Unlike most of my friends, I have never owned a pet. Not because I did not want to but because my parents would not allow me to have one. Both my parent's careers required them to travel quite often. They felt owning a pet and having to shuffle it around to sitters and kennels on top of the pet being home by itself for hours on end would be cruel. While I understood their philosophy, it did not hinder my desire to have a furry little friend to call my own.

My Uncle JT, one of my father's Navy SEAL brothers, got a chocolate lab when I was about eight years old. He named him Hawkeye. I considered Hawkeye my adopted pet. He was the furry friend I saw most and although he wasn't mine, I loved him as though he was. When JT would go on trips, he would sometimes leave Hawkeye with us to watch. I would fantasize that Hawkeye was all mine. I just loved taking care of him. I made sure to feed him properly, I took him for long walks and played with him in the back yard. My favorite though was having him sleep at the foot of my bed each night.

I felt like I always slept so soundly on those nights. Hawkeye was my protector and I was always sad when Uncle JT would come to retrieve him. I wondered if Hawkeye missed me like I missed him and I worried that he would forget about me and all our fun if too much time passed between visits.

My Uncle JT was killed in action in 2011. He left behind no wife or children; just his loyal, furry friend Hawkeye. At the funeral rehearsal, Hawkeye was led down the aisle and commanded to sit at the foot of JT's empty casket. JT would have been so proud of how well behaved and obedient Hawkeye was throughout that rehearsal. I wondered if he sensed something was wrong. Hawkeye was still heavy on my mind the next morning as we prepared for the funeral. It saddened my heart to think of Hawkeye in a never-ending state of "waiting" on his master to return. The little girl inside of me hoped once again that he had no understanding of time. His eyes danced around at the people sitting in rows as he walked past. He had no idea of what had transpired. Perhaps he was lucky in that sense. Then something happened that will forever touch me to my core. As I watched Hawkeye continue meandering down that aisle to the now occupied casket where JT's remains rested, he became restless. He honored the command given him to sit but as though his body could not take it any longer, he lowered his head, whimpering and moved slowly toward the foot of the casket. He collapsed on his side and rest his head on the ground and simply cried.

Hawkeye knew JT was in that casket. You could hear the pain in his howl and it was then that I realized just how truly connected they were. JT was indeed Hawkeye's best friend and I no longer questioned Hawkeye's understanding of time passed. Time meant nothing to him.

I see animals and their owners differently now. I see them as an extended part of one's family, not merely a pet. Although I had not understood it at the time, my parents had been correct in not committing to raising an animal in our house hold. Given their demanding work and travel schedules and my rigorous school and extra-curricular schedule, we would have provided an unsatisfactory, down¬ right lonely scenario for any animal. However, now as a young adult, I want to make raising an animal a priority in my home. I long for that special connection between man and her best friend and I plan to make that happen.

Essay 2:

Question: If I had to live the rest of my life in a country other than the U.S., where would that be and why?

Title: One More By: Kailee S.

As I watched the movie Hacksaw Ridge, I witnessed the selfless courage of soldier Desmond Doss as he pulled over 75 men, both Americans and Japanese, from their war zone deathbed as he cried out, "Please Lord, help me get one more." He faced an insurmountable situation that I believe was achieved only through the power of God and his faith.

It is with this same attribute of unwavering faith and belief in God that I live my life. It has been my faith that has equipped me for life's challenges. When I think of living somewhere other than the United States for the rest of my life, I immediately see my Great-Grandfather who fought on the shores of Normandy, my Paw-Paw who served several years after WWII, my Grandfather who served during the Vietnam War, and my Step dad who has fought in Iraq and Afghanistan, and there is an overwhelming sadness that consumes my heart, but it is uplifted by my faith that God can use me in any country to serve Him and humanity.

Australia, much like the United States, has increased it awareness of mental illnesses and much like the U.S., it still neglects the social and individual impact that mental illnesses have on its people and society. Currently, fewer than half of those in Australia suffering from a mental illness can actually obtain medical care, and even those with severe mental health problems cannot receive care often due to the expense. Amazingly, a large percentage of Australians will face a mental health issue. Because of the similarity between the U.S. and Australia's mental health crisis, I would be compelled to live in Australia and fight to improve the awareness and lives of those suffering from mental illnesses. My hope of having my own practice where I would assist soldiers (or others) with PTSD, troubled teenagers, and those suffering with mental illnesses is a passion that could be pursued in Australia.

Another purpose for living my life in Australia would be to bring closure to the thousands and thousands of British orphaned children, who are now elderly, that were forcibly transported to Australia from 1947–1967 for various reasons, one being to bring British people to populate the colonies. Many of these "lost children" actually had British relatives who intended to come back for their child. However, when their parents went to get them, the orphanages falsely told them that their child was with a new loving family. Neither the British government, Australian government, nor the church orphanages will take any responsibility. These "lost children" of times past were neglected, exploited, and abused. They were deceived into believing that they would be going to Australia to live with a loving family only to find that they moved far from their relatives to live in another orphanage. Today, they are suffering mentally from the aftermath of their abuse. Many are frail, aged in their 60's, and looking to find their lifelong lost relatives and peace. To bring closure to these "young souls" that live in aged bodies would serve a meaningful purpose in a foreign land to me.

Abraham Lincoln once said, "I like to see a man proud of the country in which he lives. I like to see a man live so that his country will be proud of him." To live in the United States makes me very proud, and I hope to someday change the social obstacles facing those with PTSD or a mental illness and make my country proud, but if I had to live in Australia, ultimately, it is God that I serve.

As a future licensed therapist, I hope to inspire others with the same spirit Desmond Doss demonstrated—a spirit of faith, courage, integrity, relentless commitment, and an unexplainable physical strength fueled by the power of the mind and a belief in a loving God. To equip a "lost child," soldier, teenager, or mentally impaired person, with this inner strength could help them find peace and healing. Like Desmond Doss, who not only pulled Americans from the war zone, but also Japanese men, I faithfully live for a purpose, and for me it is not to pull soldiers or children from a war zone, but it is to help save others, whether they are American, Australian, or long lost British children from the mental shrapnel of their own war zones as I faithfully pray, "Please Lord, help me get one more".

Essay 3:

Question: The one athlete or celebrity for whom I have the most respect and why?

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 13

TOURNAMENT FORMAT

The tournament consists of three days of play, Saturday, Sunday and Monday. A five man team will play each course: Pebble Beach Golf Links, Spyglass Hill Golf Course, and The Links at Spanish Bay.

You will play with a celebrity captain each day. The format will be a combined best two balls, low gross & low net, of the five-some for the score. The low gross & net cannot be the same ball. When playing with a celebrity captain you may use his ball as one of the best balls. Here at the Legends Invitational golf is a team sport.

Your team will be assigned tee times for each day of play at all three courses. Local rules will apply. Cards will be marked with strokes where they fall. The maximum handicap is 18. Handicaps are determined for all three courses based on the slope rating of 138 from the white tees and red tees for the ladies at Pebble Beach. The pro shop at The Inn at Spanish Bay will handle all scoring. To be eligible for a prize, you must turn in your scorecard immediately after play to the pro shop where you completed your round.

PRIZES

Closest to the pin prize on a par three hole at Pebble Beach #5 and Spanish Bay #16. Awards will be given in the following categories for each flight.

Flight one: 1st place – 5 prizes 2nd place – 5 prizes Flight two: 1st place – 5 prizes

2nd place – 5 prizes

You may bet on your ability to put the ball inside a twenty-foot circle. On bets of five, ten or twenty dollars we pay five to one odds, if your ball lands inside or on the circle of the 5th hole at Pebble Beach and the 16th hole at Spanish Bay.

CADDIES

Caddies are available, call CADDIE SERVICES, INC (CSI) at 831-622-6162. They will make all arrangements. We recommend that each team take at least one caddie to speed up play and make your round more enjoyable.

MICHAEL E. THORNTON USN SEAL (Ret.) CMOH 2017 Legends Invitational Pedestal Award Recipient

After a distinguished military career, Mike Thornton continued his support and involvement within the military community. Because of his relationships, Mike often heard of families in dire need of assistance and was fortunate enough to have friends, family and corporate benefactors willing and able to help.

Serving as an informal middleman over the years, the requests for assistance as well as the number of people who wanted to help continued to grow. In order to better expedite his endeavor, Mike created a foundation to educate the public on the needs and challenges that exist in order to help as many military families as possible.

Recognizing the hardships these families were struggling just to exist, Mike approached the challenge in a militaristic fashion by identifying the objective. What he discovered was a charitable system where the essential needs of families' fell through the cracks. Although they were many foundations in place to help, most of their by-laws and requirements didn't deliver urgent support. In the meantime, the families were losing their homes, cars, and unable to meet medical and daily financial burdens until the larger foundation could deliver assistance.

The Michael E. Thornton Foundation (METFUND), aids military families in distress by bridging the gap between the high-priority needs arising in daily life and the long-term support so greatly needed by our military families and Veterans struggling with assimilation back into civilian life.

Following its Mission Statement: To provide immediate support to assist both Active Duty, Veterans, and their families where the need is the greatest, the foundation has paid for, housing, rent, car repairs, beds, tuition, utility and hospital bills, for over 50 plus active U.S. Military men, women and Veterans. The goal of the foundation is to enlist both the public and private sectors to address these immediate needs of our service members.

To date, the foundation has donated to Marine Corps Law Enforcement Foundation, Marine Corps Scholarship

PEDESTAL AWARD HONOREES

Foundation, LCDR Erik S. Kristensen USN 90 Memorial Scholarship Fund, Duskin Stephens Foundation, Crocket Retreat Center, Irish Pub Children's Foundation, Navy SEAL Foundation, NSW Family Foundation, and Screaming Eagle Foundation. Mike and his wife, Rainey, go to each of the individual foundations to insure the contributions from the METFUND are used as intended.

Donors underwrite the foundation's office and expenses. All active Board Members donate their time and money to the METFUND, including Mike's worldwide speaking engagements fees. The commitment of the foundation organization is to insure 100% of all contributions, time and energy is focused on helping these family's get back on their feet or put a ban aid on until it can get them to the right foundation or person for help,

Although the general public is aware of the financial distress incurred to military families by the death of a spouse or the adjustment back into civilian society, most of us do not comprehend the basic day-to-day hardships of the military families. Taking on a new assignment, Mike and his foundation are dedicated to eradicating these obstacles, envisioning a nation in which every active duty and veteran's needs are addressed no matter how large or small.

2017 RON MACINTYRE MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP AWARD WINNER KAMERON WOODS

Kameron is a long-standing member of the Boys & Girls Clubs of Monterey County. Since his start, he was inspired by various Club mentors to follow his dreams and not to let anyone crush them. He was motivated to always give his best effort every day, to work ardently for everything, to pursue academic success, and to disregard any negative labels that could be an obstacle to accomplish his goals. He gained the confidence to face any challenges in life.

Currently at school, Kameron excels in sports like football, track and wrestling; and at the Club, Kameron has participated in many of the Club teen programs, including Diplomas 2 Degrees and the teen employment program Career Launch. He enjoys drawing and acting. Kameron got the opportunity to star in various commercials with companies such as Facebook, McDonalds, Outback Steak House and Armour. He has had the experience of working with various actors and actresses and even with the NBA star Stephen Curry.

Kameron realizes that education is the way to accomplish his dream. He plans to pursue acting and directing after he graduates with a major in Film and a minor in Business Administration at the University of Southern California. Kameron was selected to be the Youth of The Year for 2017. In this capacity he is the Boys & Girls Clubs of Monterey County Youth spokesperson. He is also the recipient of various scholarships and recognitions that have made him a shining example to his peers.

Thursday Reception Entertainment

NAVY SEALS UP CLOSE & PERSONAL

Our Thursday afternoon reception begins with a Navy SEAL military demonstration. SEALs will parachute from airplanes, reenact combat assaults, and execute SEAL K9 tactics. Executive Director, Rick Kaiser, Assistant

Executive Director, Ken Corona, and Assistant Executive Director, Mark Hileman, oversee the National Navy UDT-SEAL Museum located in Fort Pierce, Florida. Together they preserve the history and heritage of the Navy SEALs and their predecessors, while honoring the fallen at the Navy SEAL Memorial, located on the museum grounds. Paramount to their leadership is caring for the families of Special Operations Forces through the Trident House Charities Program. Special Operations Forces support includes everything from academic scholarships and medical assistance, to the actual Trident House retreat.

MEET RAVEN—A MILITARY WORKING DOG (MWD)

Raven, a Belgian Malinois, was born in Ontario, Canada at Baden K9, a training facility that has trained Working Service Dogs for the military, law enforcement, security firms, and civilian clientele worldwide for over 30 years. Raven's training began when he was three months old and continues to this day, consisting of obedience, agility, personal protection, tracking, explosive detection, and working under stress. With the support of his human, Phil Ryan, Raven helps protect the National Navy UDT-SEAL Museum and educate the public about the abilities of Military Working Dogs.

Thursday Night Emcee

RICK KAISER BMCM, SEAL (RET.)

OUR THURSDAY NIGHT EMCEE will be Rick Kaiser. Born and raised in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Rick joined the United States Navy at age 17. He attended Basic Underwater Demolition SEAL (BUDS) training Class 109 in Coronado, California. After basic training, Rick was assigned to SEAL Team Two in Little Creek, VA in 1980. Here he served at SEAL Team Two from 1980–1985, specializing in winter warfare, combat diving and sniping.

Rick was selected for duty at Naval Special Warfare Development Group (NSWDG) in 1985. In 1993, he received the Silver Star Medal for Valor during the Battle of Mogadishu (Black Hawk Down) and continued to serve at NSWDG from 1985 to October 2012.

During his time at NSWDG, Rick acted as sniper, explosives expert, lead training Chief, sniper team leader, and Deputy Operations Officer. Rick is currently employed as the Executive Director of The National Navy UDT-SEAL Museum, Fort Pierce, Florida.

THURSDAY NIGHT ENTERTAINMENT

DIZZY BURNETT & GROVER COE ENSEMBLE

Since their inception in 1991, Dizzy Burnett & Grover Coe has established themselves as one of northern California's premier jazz vocal ensembles. Enthusiastic audiences are charmed by their combination of musicality and showmanship, Bay Area's "Metro" newspapers have described Dizzy & Grover as: "smart, sophisticated, full of subdued snap and swing."

The San Jose Mercury News adds: "Burnett's voice possesses the same vulnerability that makes Billie Holiday such a joy and heartache to listen to" and "Coe's guitar sounds as smooth and polished as the chrome on a 50's diner."

Dizzy Burnett's smoky, sultry vocals, and her vibrant playing of her blonde acoustic jazz bass are perfectly complimented by Grover Coe's shimmering, cascading guitar lines and charismatic singing. Together they are elegant and uplifting, covering jazz, blues and popular standards with pizzazz.

The intimate, romantic sounds of this duo have made them staples at some of California's most prestigious resorts and restaurants; venues such as the Lodge at Pebble Beach, Carmel's Highlands Inn, and the Inn at Spanish Bay. In a larger format, their quartets are packing dance floors from Palm Springs to San Francisco. Whether your event calls for subdued sophistication or high energy dance excitement, Dizzy and Grover can deliver the goods with style and class. You'll be hearing some of America's unique musical treasures performed by some of her best and brightest: Dizzy Burnett and Grover Coe.--

Navy SEALs Up Close & Personal Thursday Night Guest Speakers

Jack Jacobs

1st Lieutenant, U.S. Army U.S. Support Command

Medal Received from: President Richard Nixon October 9, 1969

For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in action at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty. Capt. Jacobs (then 1st Lt.), Infantry, distinguished himself while serving as assistant battalion adviser, 2nd Battalion, 16th Infantry, 9th Infantry Division, Army of the Republic of Vietnam. The 2nd Battalion was advancing to contact when it came under intense heavy machine gun and mortar fire from a Viet Cong battalion positioned in well-fortified bunkers. As the 2nd Battalion deployed into attack formation its advance was halted by devastating fire. Capt. Jacobs, with the command element of the lead company, called for and directed air strikes on the enemy positions to facilitate a renewed attack. Due to the intensity of the enemy fire and heavy casualties to the command group, including the company commander, the attack stopped and the friendly troops became disorganized.

Although wounded by mortar fragments, Capt. Jacobs assumed command of the allied company, ordered a withdrawal from the exposed position and established a defensive perimeter. Despite profuse bleeding from head wounds, which impaired his vision, Capt. Jacobs, with complete disregard for his safety, returned under intense fire to evacuate a seriously wounded adviser to the safety of a wooded area where he administered lifesaving first aid. He then returned through heavy automatic weapons fire to evacuate the wounded company commander. Capt. Jacobs made repeated trips across the fire-swept open rice paddies evacuating wounded and their weapons. On three separate occasions, Capt. Jacobs contacted and drove off Viet Cong squads who were searching for allied wounded and weapons, single-handedly killing three and wounding several others.

His gallant actions and extraordinary heroism saved the lives of one U.S. adviser and 13 allied soldiers. Through his effort the allied company was restored to an effective fighting unit and prevented defeat of the friendly forces by a strong and determined enemy. Capt. Jacobs, by his gallantry and bravery in action in the highest traditions of the military service, has reflected great credit upon himself, his unit, and the U.S. Army. U.S. Army Medal of Honor

Thomas Norris

Lieutenant, U.S. Navy Reserves SEAL Team ONE

Medal Received from: President Gerald R. Ford March 6, 1976

Lt. Norris completed an unprecedented ground rescue of two downed pilots deep within heavily controlled enemy territory in Quang Tri Province. Lt. Norris, on the night of 10 April, led a five-man patrol through 2,000 meters of heavily controlled enemy territory, located one of the downed pilots at daybreak, and returned to the Forward Operating Base (FOB). On 11 April, after a devastating mortar and rocket attack on the small FOB, Lt. Norris led a three-man team on two unsuccessful rescue attempts for the second pilot. On the afternoon of the 12th, a forward air controller located the pilot and notified Lt. Norris. Dressed in fishermen disguises and using a sampan, Lt. Norris and one Vietnamese traveled throughout that night and found the injured pilot at dawn. Covering the pilot with bamboo and vegetation, they began the return journey, successfully evading a North Vietnamese patrol. Approaching the FOB, they came under heavy machinegun fire. Lt. Norris called in an air strike, which provided suppression fire and a smoke screen, allowing the rescue party to reach the FOB. By his outstanding display of decisive leadership, undaunted courage, and selfless dedication in the face of extreme danger, Lt. Norris enhanced the finest traditions of the U.S. Naval Service.

U.S. Navy

Michael Thornton

Petty Officer Second Class SEAL Team ONE

Medal Received from: President Richard Nixon October 15, 1973

For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty while participating in a daring operation against enemy forces. P.O. Thornton, as Assistant U.S. Navy Advisor, along with a U.S. Navy lieutenant serving as Senior Advisor, accompanied a three-man Vietnamese Navy SEAL patrol on an intelligence gathering and prisoner capture operation against an enemy-occupied naval river base. Launched from a Vietnamese Navy junk in a rubber boat, the patrol reached land and was continuing on foot toward its objective when it suddenly came under heavy fire from a numerically superior force. The patrol called in naval gunfire support and then engaged the enemy in a fierce firefight, accounting for many enemy casualties before moving back to the waterline to prevent encirclement. Upon learning that the Senior Advisor, Lt. Thomas Norris, had been hit by enemy fire and was believed to be dead, P.O. Thornton returned through a hail of fire to the lieutenant's last position; quickly disposed of two enemy soldiers about to overrun the position, and succeeded in removing the seriously wounded and unconscious Senior Naval Advisor to the water's edge. He then inflated the lieutenant's lifejacket and towed him seaward for approximately two hours until picked up by support craft. By his extraordinary courage and perseverance, P.O. Thornton was directly responsible for saving the life of his superior officer and enabling the safe extraction of all patrol members, thereby upholding the highest traditions of the U.S. Naval Service. Thornton was the first man in more than a century to receive the Medal of Honor for saving the life of another Medal of Honor recipient.

FRIDAY NIGHT EMCEE

ANTHONY MUÑOZ

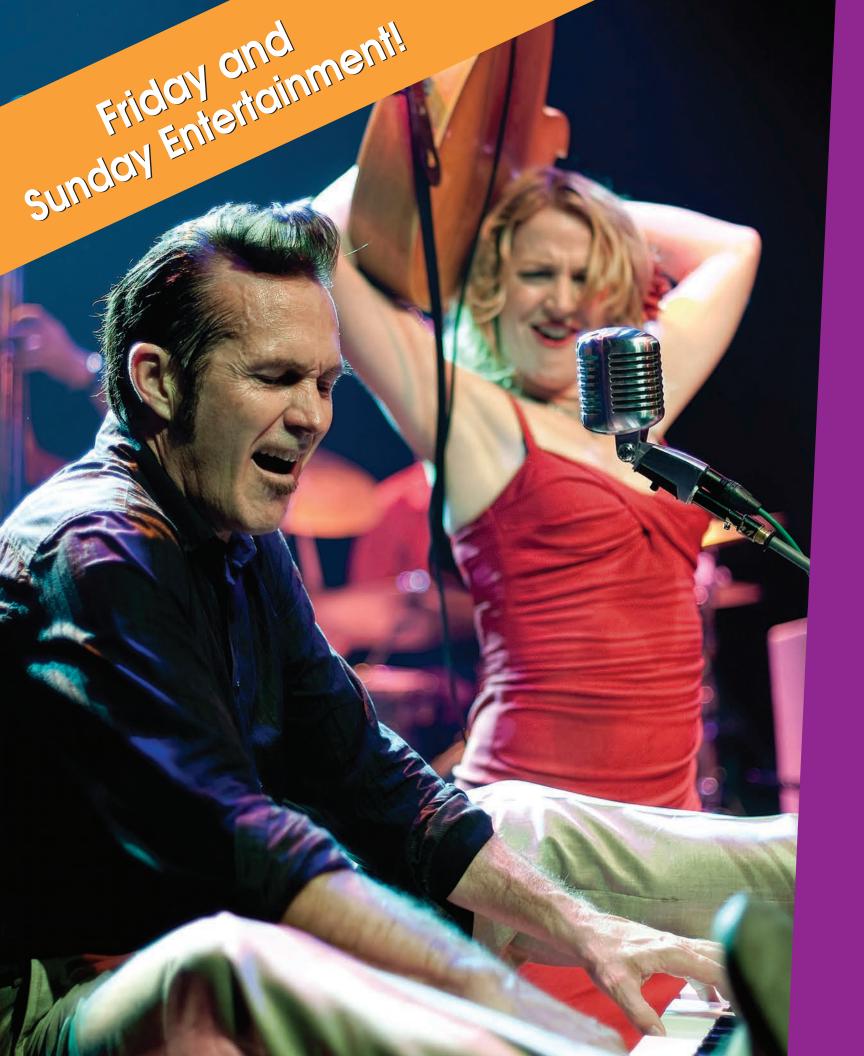

ANTHONY MUÑOZ HAS A RECORD OF EXCELLENCE

that is unrivaled in Professional Football. However, Anthony's tireless community involvement while playing for the Bengals is just as impressive. He was the recipient of the Athletes in Action Bart Starr Award for Leadership in 1990, and was named the Cincinnati Bengals Man of the Year Award for five consecutive years. In 1991, he was honored as the NFL Walter Payton Man of the Year.

Following his retirement, Muñoz was elected into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in August of 1998. In 2002, Anthony established the Anthony Muñoz Foundation, a non-profit organization that engages the Tri-State region to impact area youth mentally, physically and spiritually. Since its inception, the foundation has impacted thousands of children and raised more than $11,000,000 for its eight impact programs and continues to grow.

Besides devoting a great deal of time and energy to his Foundation, Anthony continues to be involved with several community initiatives. Anthony serves on the Board at Xavier University. He also is a member of country artist, Garth Brook's non-profit board, Teammates for Kids. Still active in the NFL as a pre-season game day announcer for the Cincinnati Bengals, Anthony serves as a selection committee member for the Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year award, and currently travels throughout the country hosting NFL Play 60 Character Camps.

Anthony continues to spend countless hours reaching out to other communities. He has spoken to Military units all over our country and participated in several Military events, like the US Army All American Bowl. In March of 2011, he was able to travel to Afghanistan and visit America Soldiers on a week-long USO tour.

STEVE LUCKY & THE RHUMBA BUMS

"Steve, Carmen, and The Entire Band are Consummate Musicians and Entertainers." Rebecca Weller, Producer, Lincoln Center, New York City

Steve Lucky (pounding piano and vocals) and Miss Carmen Getit (vocals and acclaimed guitar) front this rambunctious sextet the SF Weekly calls "San Francisco's top jump-swing band." The one-two punch of solid musicianship and lively on-stage banter between Lucky and Miss Getit has critics and audiences alike drawn to their magnetic performances.

A combination of good music, high energy and humor gives The Rhumba Bums wide audience appeal. Their charming stage presence sassy vocals, diverse repertoire, and first-rate musicianship make them a natural choice for festivals and parties. Appearances at the San Francisco Blues Festival and the San Francisco Jazz Festival have garnered rave reviews.

Presenting Our Sunday Evening Special Event!

Nestled along the jagged contours of ocean cliffs, adjacent to the renowned 17th fairway of Pebble Beach Golf Links, sits Pebble Beach Resorts' The Beach & Tennis Club. Stunningly situated upon Stillwater Cove, The Beach & Tennis Club is Monterey Peninsula's premier, private social and recreational club.

This impressive venue has a rich history spanning more than 90 years. Throughout its history, originating as a Fishing Club in 1919, the Beach & Tennis Club has attracted legendary visitors including Bing Crosby, Clint Eastwood, Jack Nicholson, Teddy Roosevelt, and Sir Winston Churchill.

Development of the Club grew through from the early 1920s into 1926 with the original green-painted concrete tennis courts being replaced with turf. In 1927, renovations were made to the clubhouse with the addition of a swimming natatorium surrounded by beach sand and lush foliage, creating a sense of seclusion.

The Tennis Club was officially formed in 1938, thereby setting the stage for numerous tennis events and tournaments over the decades. In 1992, as the site of the corporate village for the US Open golf tournament, The Beach & Tennis Club was treated to a multi-million dollar makeover.

For our final Awards event we couldn't find a more befitting venue to encapsulate the Legends Invitational experience than The Beach Club Dining Room. It's our belief that the spectacular glass wall vistas of Stillwater Cove, Carmel Bay and the 17th fairway, along with its gourmet cuisine, will leave everyone with another memorable tournament.

SUNDAY NIGHT SPECIAL GUEST STEVE AMERSON

America's Tenor

Singing America's Favorite Songs

Steve Amerson has established a reputation as a superior tenor with a vocal flexibility that allows him to feel at home in both popular / contemporary music and classical literature. From the wealth and depth of his performance experience, he is known as America's Tenor. He was one of three tenors chosen to record demonstration tapes used by Luciano Pavarotti, Placido Domingo and Jose Carreras in preparation for The 3 Tenors performances around the world. In concert, Steve has been a featured soloist with orchestras around the world and performed at venues including Carnegie Hall and the Hollywood Bowl.

Steve voice can be heard on over 175 feature films and countless television shows and commercials including Despicable Me 2, Star Trek Into Darkness, Pacific Rim, Mars Needs Moms, Get Smart, Evan Almighty, Meet the Robinsons, Matrix Revolutions, Matrix Reloaded, King Kong, Fantastic Four, The Patriot, Amistad, Contact, Indiana Jones; Temple of Doom, Glory, Home Alone, Beauty and The Beast, Aladdin, Cheers, Designing Women, St. Elsewhere, Touched by an Angel, The Hunt for Red October, The Flintstones and commercials for Ford Trucks, Honda, Nissan, Toyota, Kibbles & Bits, US Sprint, Spree, Mercedes, Texaco, IBM, and Delta Airlines.

Steve's dedication to our military and military families is strong as he often sings for events supporting those who serve and have served and military families. Since 2006, Steve has performed for Congressional Medal of Honor Foundation and Society including events in New York City, Dallas, Chicago, Atlanta, Denver, Los Angeles and at the dedication of the Medal of Honor Museum onboard the USS Yorktown in Charleston as well as other events throughout the United States.

In 2009, he was presented the "Bob Hope Award for Excellence in Entertainment" by the Medal of Honor Society. He has also performed for the Gary Sinise Foundation as well as Sky Ball and Snowball Express events for American Airlines in support of our military and military families. Currently, he is the musical ambassador for the Congressional Medal of Honor Foundation.

Presently, much of Steve's time is dedicated in presenting concerts based on his Front Row Center projects, which is a collection of inspiring songs from the Broadway stage and screen, as well as Amazed by America patriotic presentations.

a Unique Way of Life at Ocean Reef Club

ounded on the ideal of gentility and the promise of an exceptional lifestyle, Ocean Reef Club has evolved into a small but sophisticated town steeped in tradition, value and a sense of belonging. Emblematic of club-style living, Ocean Reef Club proudly features amenities and services that surpass all imaginable expectations, including a 175-slip marina, two championship golf courses, spa, salon, fitness center, art league, cultural center, pools, lagoon, fully staffed medical center, and Pre-K3 through 8th Grade Academy.

The Ocean Reef Club reflects the thoughtful creation of an ideal, exclusive community of like-minded people. From the modest fishing camp and 26-room lodge established by Morris Baker in 1948, the interests and expertise of Ocean Reef Club Members have guided the growth of this private club and community.

The original 9-hole course, laid out in the 1950s, evolved into two 18-hole championship courses: The Dolphin Course and The Hammock Course, including a Clubhouse and a Pro Shop. In addition, a tidal swimming lagoon, Buccaneer Island, was created during the fifties along with a swimming pool. Shops began to appear and the Club's moorings eventually were expanded into an well-known international marina.

In 1993, Ocean Reef became a private club following the buy-out from the former developer. Then as now, the Board of Directors, the Club staff and committees has overseen the daily operation of the Club. As the years passed, the number of Members who own their own homes with magnificent views continued to grow. Close to four thousand Members remain determined to preserve the private club's rich traditions and gracious lifestyle for future generations.

The members' growth commitment created a self-contained, private community dedicated to well being amid tranquility. The community has its own fire station with a corps of public safety officers trained as first responders, including ambulance and airlift on call. A medical center staffed with full-time doctors and an impressive array of visiting specialists. In keeping with its autonomous growth, there is a private landing strip, restaurants and shops. Yet none of these amenities intrude the prevailing calm, relaxed, and privacy ambiance that is so highly valued.

For those seeking comfort in this standard of living, with a wholesome standard of living for children and retirees, the Ocean Reef Club offers an array of real estate choices suited to any individual lifestyle. The wide selection of island homes nestled within 2,500 tropical acres along the coastline of Florida's largest archipelago island, Key Largo, guarantees a sophisticated, relax atmosphere where privacy is respected.

One can choose from waterfront estates, single-family homes, villas and golf condominiums to marina dockage and distinctive home sites with enviable views overlooking the Atlantic Ocean. When it comes to real estate options that surpass your every need and desire, the Ocean Reef Club couldn't be more accommodating with residents as unique as you.

U.S. NAVY SEAL – SENIOR CHIEF SPECIAL WARFARE OPERATOR

SOCS Edward Byers was born in Toledo, Ohio in 1979. He grew up in Grand Rapids, Ohio. In 1997, he graduated from Toledo High School where he played varsity soccer. Byers joined the Navy in September 1998, and subsequently attended Boot Camp and Corpsman "A" School in Great Lakes, Illinois.

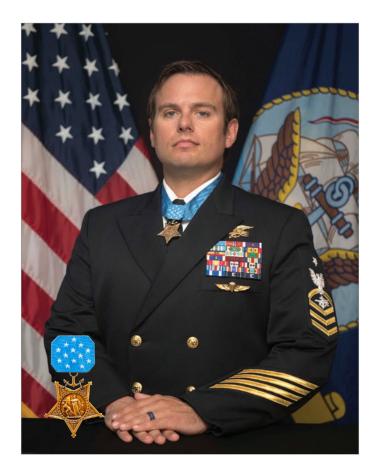

Byers spent four years as a Hospital Corpsman. In 1998, he was assigned to Great Lakes Naval Hospital. In 1999, he served with 2nd Battalion, 2nd Marines in Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, where he deployed with the 26th Marine Expeditionary Unit aboard the USS Austin (LPD 4). During deployment he earned his Enlisted Surface Warfare Specialist (ESWS) and Fleet Marine Force (FMF) warfare devices.

In 2002, Byers attended Basic Underwater Demolition SEAL (BUD/S) training and graduated with Class 242. After graduation, he attended the Special Operations Combat Medic (SOCM) course. Byers was then assigned to an East Coast SEAL Team.

Byers has 11 overseas deployments with nine combat tours. His personal decorations include the Bronvze Star with Valor (five awards), the Purple Heart (two awards), the Joint Service Commendation Medal with Valor, the Navy Commendation Medal (three awards, one with Valor), the Combat Action ribbon (two awards), and the Good Conduct Medal (five awards).

Beyers was awarded the Medal of Honor from President Barack Obama during a White House ceremony February 29, 2016 for his efforts during a hostage rescue while deployed in support of Operation Enduring Freedom in 2012. He is only the 11th living service member to be awarded the Medal of Honor for bravery displayed in Afghanistan.

Beyers holds a National Paramedics License and also studied Strategic Studies and Defense Analysis at Norwich University.

JACK JACOBS

COLONEL (RET.) MILITARY ASSISTANCE COMMAND

Jack Jacobs was born in Brooklyn, New York. He holds Bachelor's and Master's degrees from Rutgers University and entered the U.S. Army in 1966 as a Second Lieutenant through the ROTC program. He served as a platoon leader in the 82nd Airborne Division, executive officer of an infantry battalion in the 7th Infantry Division, and commanded the 4th Battalion 10th Infantry in Panama.

A member of the faculty of the US Military Academy, Jacobs taught international relations and comparative politics, and he was a member of the faculty of the National War College in Washington, DC.

He was in Vietnam twice, both times as an advisor to Vietnamese infantry battalions, earning three Bronze Stars, two Silver Stars and the Medal of Honor, the nation's highest combat decoration. Jacobs retired as a Colonel in 1987.

He was a founder and Chief Operating Officer of AutoFinance Group Inc, one of the firms to pioneer the securitization of debt instruments; the firm was subsequently sold to Key Bank. He was a Managing Director of Bankers Trust, where he ran foreign exchange options worldwide and was a partner in the institutional hedge fund business, raising more than $2 Billion. Jacobs subsequently founded a similar business for Lehman Brothers and retired again in 1995 to pursue investments.

He is a principal of The Fitzroy Group, a firm that specializes in the development of residential real estate in London and invests both for its own account and in joint ventures with other institutions. He serves on a number of charitable boards of directors and is the Co-Chairman of the Congressional Medal of Honor Foundation and Director Emeritus of the World War II Museum. Jacobs holds the McDermott Chair of Humanities and Public Affairs at the U.S. Military Academy and is an on-air analyst for NBC News, where he was an Emmy nominee in 2010 and 2011 and a recipient of the 2011 Murrow Award for his work on the Nightly News segment "Iraq: The Long Way Out." Colonel Jacobs is also the author of the Colby Award-winning memoir, If Not Now, When?, published by Penguin in October 2008. His second work of non-fiction, Basic, was released by St. Martin's Press in 2012.

THOMAS NORRIS

U.S. NAVY SEAL – LIEUTENANT (RET.) STRATEGIC TECHNICAL DIRECTORATE ASSISTANCE TEAM

Thomas Norris was a Navy SEAL in Vietnam involved in the famed "BAT 21" rescue mission, the largest of the war. He was born in Jacksonville, Florida, and later moved with his family to Wisconsin and then Maryland. He entered the University of Maryland in 1962, with the intent of pursuing a criminology career with the FBI. While in college, he was the Atlantic Coast Conference wrestling champion in both 1965 and 1966. Norris graduated in 1967 with a B.S. in Sociology and a specialty in Criminology. He joined the Navy with hopes of becoming a pilot, but when disgualified due to vision problems, volunteered for the Navy SEALs. On April 2, 1972, an EB-66 EW aircraft was shot down. Lt. Colonel Iceal Hambleton, who survived the crash, possessed intimate knowledge of classified information making immediate rescue critical. The rescue effort that followed would become the most intense and costliest rescue mission of the Vietnam War. In five days, 14 people were killed, eight aircraft lost, two rescuers captured, and three more stranded behind enemy lines. On April 10, with over 30,000 North Vietnamese soldiers in the immediate area, Norris led a five-man team of Vietnamese Sea Commandos on a two km overland insertion into dense enemy territory. At daybreak, He located Lt. Mark Clark who had been shot down during initial rescue efforts & returned him to their forward position. Shortly that position came under a heavy mortar and rocket attack which wounded his Sea Commando Officer, Marine Lt. Colonel Andy Anderson, and either wounded or killed many of the ARVN soldiers at that position. On April 12, Lt. Norris and his three remaining Sea Commandos penetrated enemy territory in an unsuccessful attempt to rescue Hambleton. Two of the three Sea Commandos were so intimidated by the massive enemy forces that they declined any further missions. On April 13th, after receiving Hambleton's position, another night rescue was attempted with his comrade Nguyen Van Kiet, the only remaining Sea Commando. Disguised as fisherman, they paddled a sampan upriver and located Hambleton at daybreak. They hid him in the boat under bamboo leaves. On their return to the base, they were pursued and fired upon by NVA patrols and heavy machine guns. With the aid of air cover, Hambleton was successfully rescued and evacuated. Approximately six months later, Norris was shot in the head and believed dead. SEAL Petty Officer Michael Thornton dragged Norris away, saving his life. It was the first time in over 100 years that one Medal of Honor recipient saved the life of another. As a result of his head injury, he retired from the Navy. In 1979, Norris applied to the FBI and requested a waiver for his disabilities. FBI director William Webster responded, "If he can pass the same test as anybody else applying for this organization, I will waive his disabilities. He has certainly earned it." Norris subsequently served as an FBI agent for 20 years. He was an original member of the FBI's Hostage Rescue Team as an assault team leader.

MICHAEL E. THORNTON

U.S. NAVY SEAL- LIEUTENANT (RET.) NAVY ADVISORY GROUP

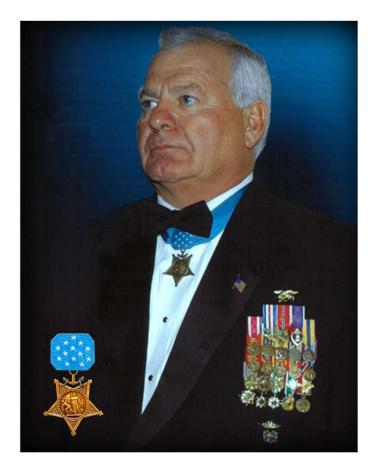

Entered service at: Spartanburg, S.C. Born: 23 March 1949, Greenville, S.C. Citation: for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty while participating in a daring operation against enemy forces.

PO Thornton, as Assistant U.S. Navy Advisor, along with a U.S. Navy lieutenant serving as Senior Advisor, accompanied a three-man Vietnamese Navy SEAL patrol on an intelligence gathering and prisoner capture against an enemy-occupied naval river base.

Launched from a Vietnamese Navy junk in a rubber boat, the patrol reached land and was continuing on foot toward its objective when it suddenly came under heavy fire from a numerically superior force. The patrol called in naval gunfire support and then engaged the enemy in a fierce firefight, accounting for many enemy casualties before moving back to the waterline to prevent encirclement.

Upon learning that the Senior Advisor had been hit by enemy fire and was believed to be dead, PO Thornton returned through a hail of fire to the lieutenant's last position; quickly disposed of two enemy soldiers about to overrun the position, and succeeded in removing the seriously wounded and unconscious Senior Naval Advisor to the water's edge. He then inflated the lieutenant's lifejacket and towed him seaward for approximately two hours until picked up by support craft.

By his extraordinary courage and perseverance, PO Thornton was directly responsible for saving the life of his superior officer and enabling the safe extraction of all patrol members, thereby upholding the highest traditions of the U.S. Naval Service.

DAVID S. BILL III

U.S. NAVY - REAR ADMIRAL - (RET.)

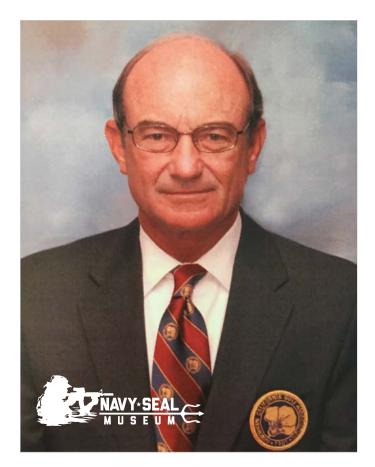

Rear Admiral David S. Bill lll is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy and served over thirtytwo years of active duty in the United States Navy.

His assignments at sea in surface ships culminated in commands of a Guided Missile Destroyer, USS Mahan (DDG-42), an Aegis Cruiser, USS Mobile Bay (CG-53), and the Battleship Wisconsin (BB-64). Admiral Bill also commanded the USS Enterprise Battle Group as Commander Cruiser Destroyer Twelve.

Significant assignments ashore included Executive Assistant to the Commander Naval Sea Systems Command; Director of Surface Warfare Programs on the staff of the Chief of Naval Operations; Operations Officer/Deputy Commander of the Atlantic Fleet; and Deputy Commander-in-Chief US Naval Forces Europe.

A highly decorated combat veteran, RADM Bill made 150 combat patrols in River Boats in South Vietnam; commanded USS Mahan during Libyan operations in 1986; and, as Commanding Officer of USS Wisconsin, was responsible for launching the Tomahawk strikes that initiated combat Operations against Iraq in Operation Desert Storm. His awards include the Distinguished Service Medal, seven Legions of Merit, three Bronze Stars, and the Purple Heart.

Upon retirement, Admiral Bill has been Executive Director of a Property Development company, Executive Director of a charitable foundation, CEO of a high tech start up, CEO of the Northern California Golf Association, and is currently serving on Boards and advising several private companies. He is actively involved with various charities supporting the U.S. Navy SEALs.

He was stationed at Naval Ordnance Missile Test Facility, at White Sands New Mexico; onboard the aircraft carrier USS NIMITZ (CVN68), Naval Air Station Bermuda; the Navy Annex in Washington, DC and then recruiting duty in St. Louis, MO before being assigned to the Naval Special Warfare Community reporting to SEAL Delivery Vehicle Team TWO (SDVT-2) at Little Creek, Virginia in 1986.

After three years on board, due to his naval experience and work ethic, he was selected as the SDVT-2 Command Master Chief – the senior enlisted advisor working directly for the Commanding Officer. In 1991 he screened and was selected for assignment to Naval Special Warfare Development Group (DEVGRU) where he served until his retirement from active duty in April 2001.

After his retirement he remained at DEVGRU as a government employee (GS) until October 2013 working as the Assistant Current Operations Officer and later as the Assistant Chief Staff Officer overseeing and managing multiple SEAL combat deployments of personnel to Afghanistan, Iraq, Africa and numerous other locations around the world. Since November 2013 he has been employed as the Assistant Executive Director of the National Navy UDT- SEAL Museum, in FT. Pierce, FL.

MICHAEL DONNELLY

U.S. NAVY SEAL - SPECIAL OPERATIONS

Michael Donnelly is a Florida native. Born and raised in Miami, Mike joined the Navy at just seventeen years old. At nineteen, he "wanted to be the best" at what he did, so Donnelly made a decision that forever altered his course. He entered BUD/S training, graduating class 173.

Donnelly went on to serve for almost a decade as a Special Operations Navy SEAL. Like most men of this "Never Quit" mindset, Donnelly has continued a relentless pursuit of excellence in all arenas since his SEAL career. In addition to cofounding BattleFrog, a wildly popular obstacle course race series, and offering corporate motivational seminars, Donnelly owns and operates a successful security company, Alarm and Electronics Systems and CrossFit Gyms Worldwide.

When he isn't working, Donnelly is working out, forever committed to a foundation of fitness and training. Mike lives in Miami with his wife Claudia, sons Michael and Martin, and daughter Gabriela.

Department where he served as an advanced training instructor.

Following his instructor tour, Nix was assigned to the U.S. Navy Parachute Team, the "Leap Frogs". Nix retired from active duty on January 31, 2010. He is currently a firearms and tactics instructor for the U.S. Navy. With over 6000 jumps, Nix is the owner and team captain of the Frog-X Parachute Team (the official jump team of the UDT-SEAL Museum). He currently lives in San Diego with his wife Wendy and four children.

TIM BROWN

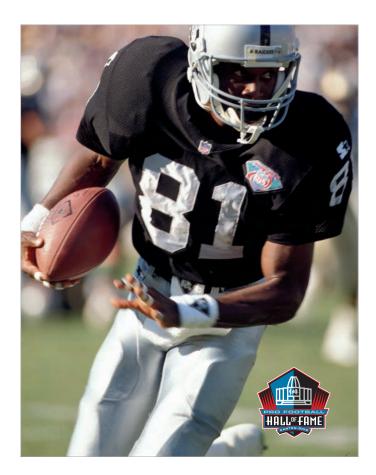

RAIDERS - BUCCANEERS - WR

Tim Brown was one of the greatest collegiate and professional wide receivers to ever play the game. During his collegiate career at Notre Dame, Tim's playmaking ability earned him the honor of being the first wide receiver to ever receive the Heisman Trophy award.

After his 1987 Heisman Trophy winning season, Tim was selected by the Los Angeles Raiders with the 6th overall pick of the 1988 NFL Draft. Tim spent sixteen years with the Raiders, during which he established himself as one of the league's most prolific wide receivers. Tim's play led him to be named to nine Pro Bowl teams and his 1,094 career receptions ranks 5th in NFL history. His fame and success with the Raider's organization earned him the title, Mr. Raider.

Tim currently works as a radio host on Sirius Radio's NFL and College Football pregame and recaps. Tim is happily married and has four children and resides in Dallas, Texas.

Tim is heavily involved in the "9-1-1 for Kids" program which teaches children emergency preparedness. He is also an ambassador to the President's Physical Fitness Council on Behalf of Reebok. Time also is heavily involved in his church and routinely speaks to groups about his faith.

CHRIS DOLEMAN

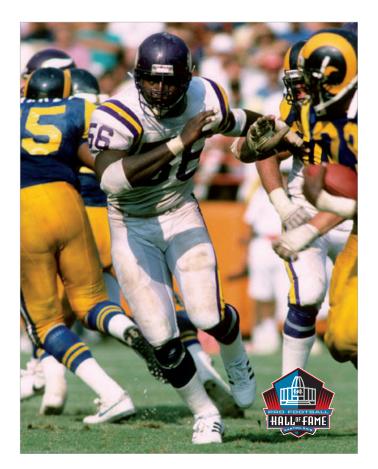

VIKINGS - 49ERS - FALCONS - DE

Chris Doleman was drafted as a linebacker out of the University of Pittsburgh by the Minnesota Vikings as the fourth player overall in the 1985 NFL Draft. He was moved to a starting defensive end position for the final three games of his second season before assuming the full-time role as starter at the spot in his third year. It was then that he unleashed his great pass rushing ability when he responded with a team-high 11 sacks in 1987. It marked the first of six sack titles with the Vikings. For his efforts he was named All-Pro, All-NFC and voted to his first Pro Bowl.

His finest season came two years later in 1989 when he led the NFL with 21 sacks, just one shy of the singleseason record at the time. In 1992, he was named the NFC's Defensive Player of the Year after he led the Vikings with 14.5 sacks, had 64 tackles, returned an interception for a touchdown, forced six fumbles, recovered three fumbles, and had a safety.

After nine seasons with Minnesota, Doleman was dealt to the Atlanta Falcons in 1994. He spent two seasons with Atlanta before signing with the San Francisco 49ers as a free agent in 1996. He played three seasons in San Francisco before returning for one final year with the Vikings in 1999.

He retired as the fourth-ranked sack leader of all-time with 150.5 sacks and was tied for third in the NFL Record Book with eight seasons in which he recorded 10 or more sacks. Aside from leading the Vikings in sacks six times, Doleman was also the Falcons' leading sacker in 1995 and led the 49ers with 15 sacks in 1998. He also intercepted eight passes, two of which he returned for touchdowns; recorded two safeties; and scored a touchdown on a fumble recovery during his career.

Doleman was extremely durable as evidenced by him missing a mere two games due to injury during his 15-season, 232-game NFL career. In all, he was named to eight Pro Bowls, six with the Vikings and once each as a member of the Falcons and the 49ers. He was named first-team All-Pro in 1987, 1989, and 1992 and first-team All-NFC four times. Doleman is a member of the NFL's All-Decade Team of the 1990s.

MIKE HAYNES

PATRIOTS - RAIDERS - DB

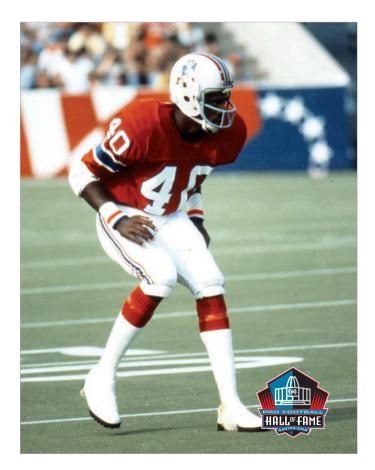

Mike Haynes, born on July 1, 1953, in Denison, Texas, was a three-year All-WAC star at Arizona State, and the New England Patriots' first selection in the 1976 NFL Draft. The 6-2, 192-pound Haynes was the fifth player and the first defensive back taken in that year's draft.

Haynes relied on his speed, quickness and range to become both a premier defensive back and an outstanding punt return specialist. He enjoyed a sensational rookie year with the Patriots with eight interceptions and an AFC-leading 608 yards on 45 punt returns. That year, Haynes gave the Patriots their first-ever touchdowns on punt returns with 89-yard and 62-yard returns. He earned a Pro Bowl invitation as a rookie, the first of nine Pro Bowl bids.

Haynes recorded 28 interceptions and 1,159 yards on 111 returns, a 10.4-yard average during his seven years with the Patriots. He started his career with 58 consecutive starts before being sidelined with a rib injury late in 1979.

Haynes played out his option with the Patriots in 1982 and in November, 1983, his contract was awarded to the Los Angeles Raiders in a settlement that gave the Patriots a No. 1 draft choice in 1984 and a No. 2 pick in 1985. Haynes played the last five games in 1983 and then started and had one interception in the Raiders' Super Bowl XVIII victory.

In seven seasons with the Raiders, Haynes returned only one punt but he added 18 interceptions to give him a career total of 46 which were returned for 688 yards and two touchdowns, including a team-record 97-yard return against Miami in 1984. Haynes was an All-Pro choice in 1977, 1978, 1982, 1984 and 1985 and an All-AFC pick eight times.

TED HENDRICKS

COLTS - PACKERS - RAIDERS - LB

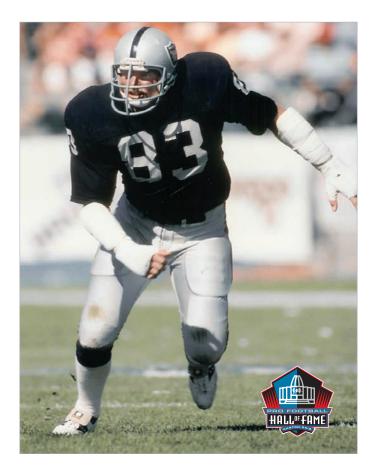

A three-time All-America as a linebacker and defensive end at the University of Miami, Ted Hendricks began his 15-season pro football career as the second-round pick of the Baltimore Colts in the 1969 AFL-NFL Draft.

Surprisingly, after five seasons the Colts traded Ted to the Green Bay Packers. The bigger surprise came, however, when the Packers allowed Hendricks to play out his option and sign with the Oakland Raiders after just one and possibly his finest season. That year he had five interceptions, blocked seven kicks, and scored a safety. He went on to play nine seasons with the Raiders before retiring after the 1983 season.

The 6-7, 220-pound Hendricks was deceivingly effective. Tall and comparatively skinny, he was strong, fast and a devastating tackler who specialized in blocking punts, field goals and extra point attempts. He was the kind of player that could totally disrupt an offense.

In his career, he intercepted 26 passes, which he returned for 332 yards and a touchdown. He also recovered 16 opponents' fumbles and scored a recordtying four safeties. Hendricks scored touchdowns on an interception, a fumble return, and a blocked punt.

Seemingly indestructible, Hendricks played in 215 straight regular-season games and also participated in eight Pro Bowl games, seven AFC championships and four Super Bowls (V with the Colts, XI, XV, XVIII with the Raiders). Ted was named All-Pro as a Colt in 1971, as a Packer in 1974, and as a Raider in 1980 and 1982. He also earned second-team All-Pro accolades five other times.

Hendricks was selected All-AFC seven times and All-NFC once. He began his career as a right linebacker but moved to the left side in the latter half of his pro tenure. In his final pro game, Hendricks was the starting left linebacker in the Los Angeles Raiders' 38-9 trouncing of the Washington Redskins in Super Bowl XVIII.

RANDALL MCDANIEL

VIKINGS - TAMPA BAY - OG

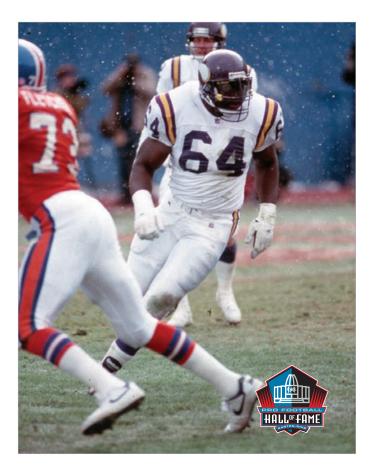

The Minnesota Vikings used their first round selection (19th overall) in the 1988 NFL Draft on guard Randall McDaniel, an All-America and four-year starter from Arizona State. McDaniel, who immediately earned a starting role with the Vikings, played in all 16 games in his rookie season, 15 as a starter. His efforts were recognized that year as he was selected to several all-rookie teams and named a second-team All-NFC pick.

McDaniel continued to excel the following season as he embarked on a streak of 202 consecutive starts that continued through the end of his career. He also earned the first of 12 straight Pro Bowl berths.

In 1994, McDaniel was the leader of a rock solid offensive line that held opponents to just one sack every 22.7 pass attempts, the second-best ratio in team history. In 1996, coaches felt he was so talented that he could be used in ways other than just blocking. In a late season game against the Arizona Cardinals, McDaniel had two goal line carries. Then, in the Pro Bowl a couple months later, he caught a touchdown pass, becoming the first guard in AFC-NFC Pro Bowl history to accomplish such a feat.

The 1998 season was highlighted by the high-scoring attack of the Vikings offense that scored a then-record 556 points. Showing his skill at both pass and run blocking, McDaniel allowed only 1.5 sacks all season while clearing run lanes for Minnesota running backs to average 5.4 yards per carry on his side of the line.

After earning nine straight first-team all-pro selections (1990 – 98) and starting 13 consecutive playoff games for the Vikings, McDaniel joined the Tampa Bay Buccaneers for two final seasons (2000 – 01) before retiring from the NFL.

Adding to an already talented offense, McDaniel in his first season with the Bucs, helped pave the way for a team that rushed for 2,066 yards. That included a team single-game record 250 yards rushing against the Dallas Cowboys. For his efforts, McDaniel was named to his final Pro Bowl.

In all, McDaniel blocked for six different 1,000-yard rushers and five 3,000-yard passers during his 14-season career. Regarded as one of the finest offensive linemen in NFL history, McDaniel was named to the NFL's All-Decade Team of the 1990s.

ANTHONY MUÑOZ

BENGALS - OT

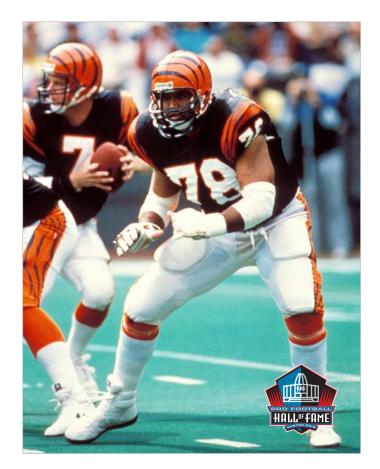

Anthony Muñoz, a 6-6, 278-pound offensive tackle, was the first-round pick of the Cincinnati Bengals and the third player selected overall in the 1980 NFL Draft. Some considered the pick a risk because of multiple knee injuries and the fact that he played only one full game his senior year at the University of Southern California. But as the two-time All-America lineman (1978-1979) proved, the concerns were unnecessary.

An exceptional straight-on blocker, Muñoz was agile, quick, and strong. He had great foot quickness and agility necessary to block quick defensive ends. Considered by many to be the premier tackle during his 13-seasons of play, he started 164 of 168 games from 1980-1990.An all-around athlete, he even caught seven passes and scored four touchdowns on tackle eligible plays. His stalwart play was the key to the success that propelled Cincinnati to three AFC Central Division titles and two AFC championships (1981 and 1988).

The recipient of virtually every possible honor, Anthony was elected to 11 consecutive Pro Bowls and was named All-Pro 11 straight times from 1981 through 1991. He was named the NFL Offensive Lineman of the Year in 1981, 1987, and 1988 and the NFL Players Association Lineman of the Year in 1981, 1985, 1988, and 1989.

Always in top-notch condition, Muñoz missed only three games due to injury. His rigorous workout routine included working out in the weight room he had installed in his home and running three to four miles every day. He set high personal standards and worked tirelessly to achieve them.

Born August 19, 1958, in Ontario, California, Muñoz was too big to play Pop Warner football as a youth. Instead, he concentrated on becoming an excellent baseball player. Eventually, as a college sophomore, he pitched for USC's national championship team in 1978. By then, however, it was clear that his size and his talents were more suited for football.

JOHN RANDLE

VIKINGS - SEAHAWKS - DT

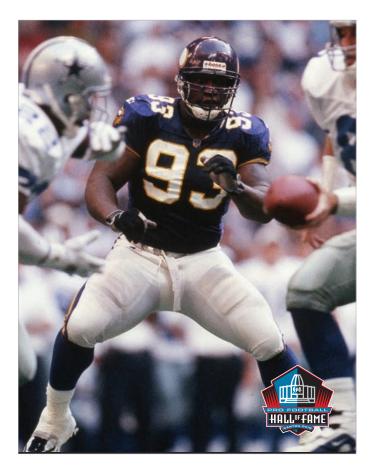

John Randle, a Little All-America from Texas A&I, signed a contract as an undrafted free agent with the Minnesota Vikings in 1990. He played in all 16 games as a rookie before he earned a starting role at defensive tackle in his second season.

Injuries forced him out of the starting lineup for parts of the 1991 and 1992 seasons before embarking on an impressive streak of 176 consecutive games played and 133 straight starts with the Vikings. After joining the Seattle Seahawks as a free agent in 2001, he ran the string to 183 games and 140 starts before a knee injury forced him out of a game.

Randle showed signs of becoming one of the NFL's most dominant pass rushers during his second NFL season when he recorded 9.5 sacks. The following year he added 11.5 sacks, which marked the first of eight straight seasons with double-digit sack totals.

In the 1993 season, Randle registered 12.5 sacks, amassed 59 tackles and forced three fumbles to earn All-Pro honors and a Pro Bowl invitation for the first time. It began a string of six straight All-Pro and Pro Bowl seasons for Randle. He improved his sack total again in 1994 with a NFC-high 13.5 sacks. Randle recorded perhaps his finest season in 1997 when he led the NFL with 15.5 sacks and also had a career-high 71 tackles.

His single best performance came against the Green Bay Packers on September 22, 1996 when he had a careerhigh 3.5 sacks and forced two fumbles as the Vikings raced out to a 4-0 start on the season after defeating the Packers, 30-21. Randle was named NFC Defensive Player of the Week for his performance and then earned NFC Defensive Player of the Month.

In all, Randle amassed 137.5 sacks during his 14-season career. He led the Vikings in sacks nine times and the Seahawks twice. Thirty-five times he recorded multi-sack games including eight games with three or more sacks. Randle was elected to seven Pro Bowls (1994-99, 2002) and named to the NFL's All-Decade Team of the 1990s.

JERRY RICE

49ERS - WR

The San Francisco 49ers used their first-round draft pick in 1985 on wide receiver Jerry Rice from little known Mississippi Valley State. It did not take long for that decision to pay huge dividends.

Rice gave a glimpse of what was to come when he averaged 18.9 yards per catch on 49 receptions for 927 yards and three TDs as a rookie. He also rushed six times and scored one touchdown on the ground.

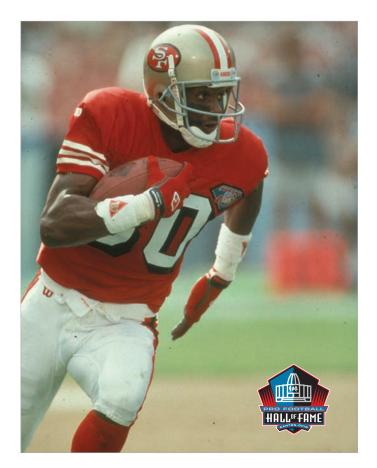

In 1986, Rice recorded a season that began perhaps the finest stretch by any receiver in NFL history. That year, he caught 86 passes for a league-leading 1,570 yards. He also led the NFL in touchdown catches with 15. It marked the first of 11 straight 1,000-yard seasons for Rice who also recorded double-digit receiving touchdown totals in nine of the next ten seasons.

The following year, Rice set the NFL record for touchdown receptions in a season with 22. His first of four seasons with 100 catches came in 1990 when he had an even 100 receptions to lead the NFL in that category. It marked the first of two receiving titles for Rice.

He led the NFL in receiving yards six times including a NFL record 1,848 yards in 1995. Rice also led the NFL in touchdown receptions six times.

No wide receiver in NFL history played more than Rice's 20 seasons. By the time he retired after finishing his career with Oakland and Seattle, he was the most prolific wide receiver in NFL history with staggering career totals.

He owns virtually every significant receiving mark. Some of the more notable career records include receptions (1,549); receiving yards (22,895 yards); most 1,000-yard receiving seasons (14); total touchdowns (208); and combined net yards (23,546).

Rice has a hold on multiple NFL playoff and Super Bowl records. He played in eight conference championships and four Super Bowls. He earned three Super Bowl rings with the 49ers and was named the Most Valuable Player of San Francisco's Super Bowl XXIII win over the Cincinnati Bengals.

Rice, who was named first-team All-Pro 11 consecutive seasons and voted to 13 Pro Bowls, is also a member of the NFL's All-Decade Teams of the 1980s and 1990s and NFL's 75th Anniversary Team.

JAN STENERUD

CHIEFS - PACKERS - VIKINGS - K

Jan Stenerud, who was born November 26, 1942, in Fetsund, Norway, was an outstanding ski jumper who attended Montana State on a skiing scholarship. Late in his sophomore year, Stenerud was spotted kicking a football by the college's baseball coach who relayed the news of the Norwegian's abilities to the football coach.

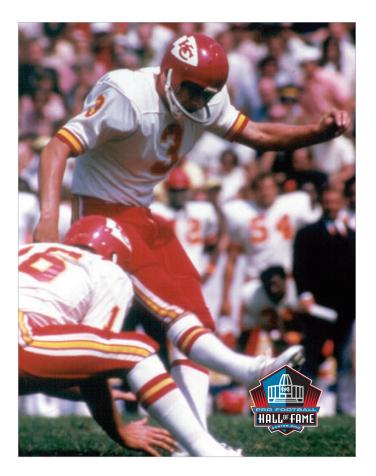

For the next two years, he starred on the varsity football team with a then-record 59-yard field goal and 82 points scored as a senior. The Kansas City Chiefs were so impressed that they drafted Stenerud in the third round of the AFL's 1966 future draft.

The 6-2, 187-pound Stenerud excelled for 19 seasons and 263 games in pro football. He never missed a game because of injury or illness. He kicked for the Chiefs for 13 years from 1967 until 1979 but was released in the summer of 1980. Three months later, he signed a free agent contract with the Green Bay Packers, with whom he stayed with for four seasons. In 1984, the Packers traded Stenerud to the Minnesota Vikings for a seventhround draft choice. He retired after the 1985 season.

Stenerud is the first "pure" placekicker to enter the Hall. His list of outstanding achievements is long. With 1,699 points, he ranked behind only the fabled George Blanda in all-time scoring at the time of his retirement.

His 373 career field goals and seven seasons of scoring 100 or more points were also NFL records. He kicked 17 field goals over 50 yards and his personal best was a 55-yarder against Denver in 1970.

In the Chiefs' upset victory over the Vikings in Super Bowl IV, Stenerud's three field goals, including a then Super Bowl record 48-yarder, accounted for the first nine points. A six-time all-league selection, Stenerud played in two AFL All-Star games and in four AFC-NFC Pro Bowls. He was named the Outstanding Offensive Player in the 1972 Pro Bowl.

PAUL WARFIELD

BROWNS - DOLPHINS - WR

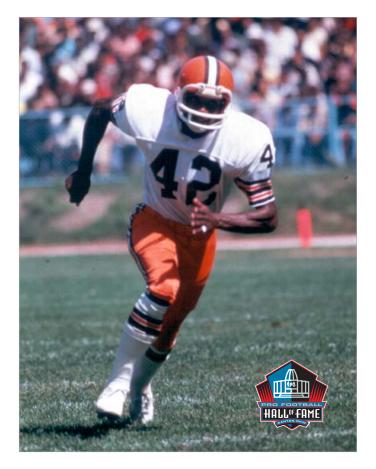

Paul Warfield is recognized as one of the premier wide receivers ever to have played in the National Football League. While his career totals for numbers of catches may not seem in line with those accumulated by other great receivers, as any student of the game understands, the truth isn't always in the numbers.

A first-round draft pick of the Cleveland Browns in 1964, Paul played in Cleveland six seasons before going to the Miami Dolphins in a blockbuster trade in 1970. He returned to Cleveland in 1976 after five seasons with the Dolphins and one season with the Memphis Grizzlies of the failed World Football League.

Even though he played on ball-control teams through most of his career, he managed to haul in 427 passes for 8,565 yards and 85 touchdowns. His 20.1 yardsper-catch mark ranks among the best in the history of the game. And he did it with a trademark smooth, graceful style that left observers and victimized defenders awestruck.

As a rookie, Warfield caught a career-high 52 passes. His outside speed was the perfect compliment to the power running of Jim Brown. During his first six years with the Browns, the team played in five conference championships, as well as the 1964 championship game. Because of his blazing speed, elusive moves, and great leaping ability, defenses often found it necessary to double cover him.

Warfield, a six-time All-NFL choice who was elected to eight Pro Bowls, was a long ball threat who intimidated the opposition. His mere presence on the field proved to be almost as beneficial to the running game. The best example of this may have been in 1972 when the Dolphins went undefeated. That year Miami ran the ball 613 times while passing on just 259 occasions.

The Dolphins' philosophy was to use the forward pass as a threat to make the ground game more effective. The Dolphins rushed for a then-NFL record 2,960 yards.

DAVE WILCOX

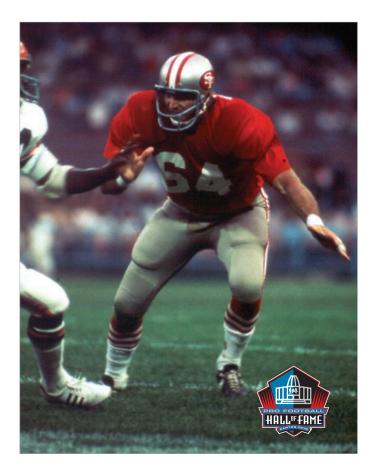

49ERS - LB

Dave Wilcox played collegiate football at Boise Junior College before transferring to Oregon for his final two campaigns. At Boise he earned junior college All-America honors. A guard on offense and an end on defense, Wilcox played in the Hula Bowl, Coaches' All-America Bowl, and the College All-Star game.

In 1964, he became the first defensive lineman in Hula Bowl history to earn outstanding lineman honors. In 1964, both the Houston Oilers of the young American Football League and the San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League sought to sign the Oregon star. The Oilers drafted him in the 6th round (46th player overall) of the AFL draft, while the 49ers tapped him in the 3rd round (29th player overall) of the NFL draft.

The 6-3, 241-pound Wilcox opted to sign with the more established 49ers where he went on to star for 11 seasons. Converted to the outside linebacker position, Wilcox quickly established himself as one of the league's finest. Nicknamed "The Intimidator," he was ideally suited for the position, both mentally and physically. Known for his ability to disrupt plays, he was particularly tough on tight ends. He simply didn't let anybody off the line of scrimmage whether to block or get into a pass route. Always prepared, Wilcox was a true student of the game and worked to be "fundamentally correct."

He thrived on action and wanted it all directed his way. "What I do best," Wilcox once stated, "is not let people block me. I just hate to be blocked." Hall of Fame linebacker Joe Schmidt was impressed by his strength. "He gave us fits," he remarked. "The lead block had to really come out hard to take him out because he was so strong." Aided by his speed and long reach, he was also effective in pass coverage and managed to intercept 14 passes during his career.

Following each season, San Francisco would rate their players based upon their performance. The typical score for a linebacker was 750. Wilcox's score in 1973 was 1,306. That season the veteran linebacker recorded 104 solo tackles, four forced fumbles, and tackled opposing ball carriers for a loss 13 times. Durable, Wilcox missed only one game during his career due to injury. Five times he was named All-NFL (1967,1970, 1971, 1972, 1973) and three times All-NFC (1971, 1972, 1973). He was also selected to play in seven Pro Bowls.

Hendricks was selected All-AFC seven times and All-NFC once. He began his career as a right linebacker but moved to the left side in the latter half of his pro tenure. In his final pro game, Hendricks was the starting left linebacker in the Los Angeles Raiders' 38-9 trouncing of the Washington Redskins in Super Bowl XVIII.

DICK ANDERSON

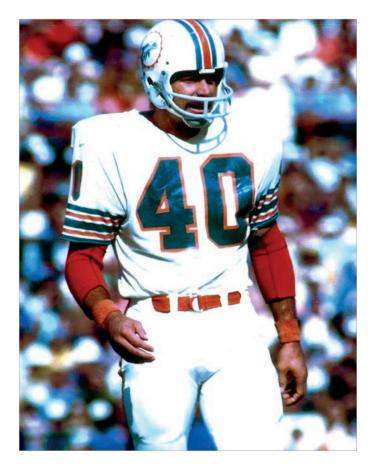

DOLPHINS - DB

Dick Anderson played safety for the University of Colorado and was named All-American in his senior season, setting a school record with 14 career interceptions. He was selected by Miami in the third round of the 1968 National Football League Draft. Dick played his entire career as a strong safety for the Dolphins, retiring after the 1977 season.

In his ten NFL seasons, Anderson recorded 34 interceptions, which he returned for 792 yards and three touchdowns. He also recovered 15 fumbles, returning them for 100 yards and a touchdown. On special teams, he gained 430 yards returning kickoffs and punted the ball nine times for 335 yards. He was one of 16 players in the history of the NFL to intercept four passes in one game.

In 1968, Anderson was named the AFL league defensive rookie of the year. Dick played in Super Bowl VI, VII & VIII, winning two of those games. He was named All-Pro three years in a row playing in the Pro Bowl from 1972 to 1974 and was named Defensive Player of the Year in 1973. During the '72 season Anderson was one of the leaders of the Dolphins well known No Name Defense. Dick also served from 1975 until he retired in 1977 as the President of the National Football League Players Association.

In 1993, Anderson was enshrined in the College Football Hall of Fame, in 2006 he was inducted into the Miami Dolphins' Honor Roll and the Florida Sports Hall of Fame in 2012. Dick was elected to the Florida State Senate in 1978 following his career with the Dolphins. He is currently President of the Anderson Insurance Group and active on several Non-Profit Boards in Miami.

JAMES BURT

GIANTS - 49ERS - OL

Jim Burt is a former American football player who played for the New York Giants and San Francisco 49ers in the National Football League (NFL). Burt played nose tackle for the Giants team that won Super Bowl XXI and the 49ers team that won Super Bowl XXIV.

Burt attended the University of Miami, where he started on the football field for the Hurricanes and was inducted into the University of Miami Sports Hall of Fame.

Burt joined the Giants as an undrafted free agent in 1981. He made the Pro Bowl in 1986 and finished his career with his 20 quarterback sacks. Burt was respected throughout the league for his toughness and determination, which resulted in him going from being an undrafted rookie free agent to a Pro Bowler. He is also known for knocking out 49ers quarterback Joe Montana on a pass in the 1986 Divisional Playoff game. Montana's pass was picked off and returned for a touchdown by Giants linebacker Lawrence Taylor. The Giants won, 49-3, on their way to winning Super Bowl XXI.

Although many people often credit Harry Carson and Lawrence Taylor with inventing the "Gatorade Shower" on coaches following wins, Burt actually created it in 1985. As Carson stated in his 1987 book, "Point of Attack: The Defense Strikes Back", head coach Bill Parcells was especially hard on Burt in practice. Parcells often made Burt raise a 50 lb. dumbbell repeatedly off the ground in practice to simulate raising his arm powerfully out of his stance at the snap of the ball. Burt exacted revenge on Parcells after a win in 1985 by dousing him with a cooler of Gatorade. This has since become a tradition in football analogous to the champagne showers teams make in their locker rooms after winning a championship.

Burt battled back problems with the New York Giants which ultimately caused Parcells to announce his retirement in 1988. Burt, however, was not ready to retire and instead joined the San Francisco 49ers for the 1989 season. He won his second Super Bowl with the team when they defeated the Denver Broncos in Super Bowl XXIV.

During the 2006 season Burt travelled to Dallas to give moral support to his former tormentor Parcells, who was then head coach of the Dallas Cowboys. He also delivered a pre-game speech and stood on the sidelines exulting Dallas' defensive players.

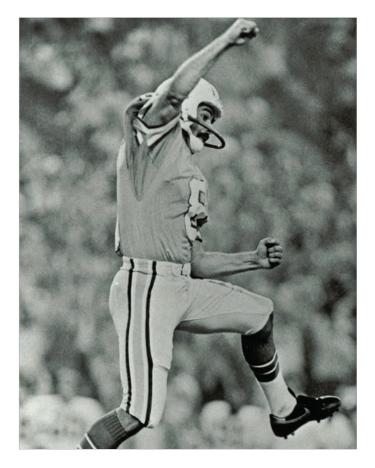

JOE COOPER

OILERS - GIANTS - PK

Joe Cooper began his athletic career on the athletic fields of Central California. A multi-sport athlete, he excelled in football, baseball, soccer and track. From competing in the Junior Olympics to being offered collegiate baseball scholarships and a professional soccer contract at the age of 14 with the Bristol Rovers, Joe chose football as his athletic path.

Receiving accolades in all sports through high school, he was named to the California All State Football Team in 1977. Spurning offers from Alabama, Notre Dame, Washington, Michigan State, Texas A&M and a host of other schools, Joe chose to attend the University of California on a football scholarship. While at Cal, he was a four year starter, All West Coast and PAC 10 selection. He left Cal as a number two leading scorer in Cal Football history and in the top ten of many other Cal Football records.

Signed by the San Diego Charges in 1984, Joe landed a roster spot with the Houston Oilers that year. During his rookie season, he kicked 11 of 13 field goals, leading the AFC in field goal percentage as a rookie. It was Joe's winning 44 yard field goal with 30 seconds remaining against the Kansas City Chiefs in December 1984, that broke an NFL record of futility for the Houston Oilers; the longest road losing streak in NFL history. That kick, coupled with an overtime field goal against arch rival Pittsburgh Steelers and a game winner against the New York Jets, helped to turn around the Houston Oilers in the post Earl Campbell era. Joe finished his professional career in 1986 as a member of the New York Giants. During his NFL career, Joe attended law school and has been a practicing attorney in California since the 1980's. He is a member of the prestigious American Board of Trial Advocates (ABOTA), which recognizes trial attorneys throughout the country who demonstrate the highest moral character and legal aptitude. Joe and his wife, Lisa, are the managing partners of Cooper & Cooper LLP, a full service law firm based in Fresno, California.

CLAUDE CRABB

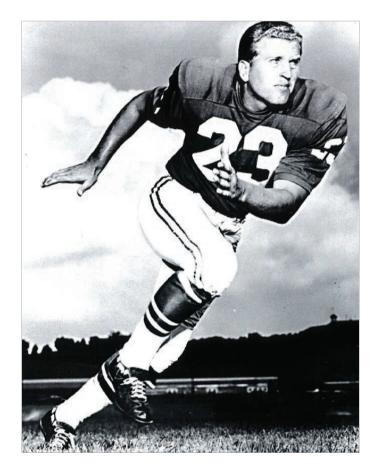

REDSKINS - EAGLES - LA RAMS - DB

Claude Crabb was born and raised in Monterey, California, where he attended Monterey High School. He was considered to be maybe the best all round athlete ever to play in the Monterey Peninsula. He was an all-American Quarterback in Football and was highly recognized for his Track and Basketball accomplishments. He was chosen to play in the Annual 1958 Shriner's North-South High School All-Star Game. He was the first professional football player out of Monterey County.

Claude began his college career at Monterey Peninsula College where in 1958 they tied for the conference championship. He was awarded All American Honors as a quarterback and was inducted into the Monterey Peninsula Hall of Fame in 1993. Claude chose the University of Colorado to continue his football and college career. In 1961 Colorado won the Big Twelve Conference Championship taking them to the Orange Bowl. As a defensive back he received all Big Eight Honors.

He was chosen in the future draft by the Washington Redskins in 1962 as a defensive back. His first year he made six interceptions and was named to the NFL defensive All-Rookie team. In 1964 along with Norm Snead he was traded to the Philadelphia Eagles for Sonny Jurgensen and Jimmy Carr. In 1966 he was traded to the Los Angeles Rams. The Rams became the Western Division Champions in 1967 and lost in the playoffs to the Green Bay Packers. Claude retired from the NFL after the 1968 season.

While playing for the Los Angeles Rams he met his wife, Kay. They have two married daughters and five grandchildren. They now reside in the Palm Springs, California area where Claude now dedicates a lot of time to his favorite sport, GOLF, as well as, continuing to be involved in charitable functions.

BRUCE GOSSETT

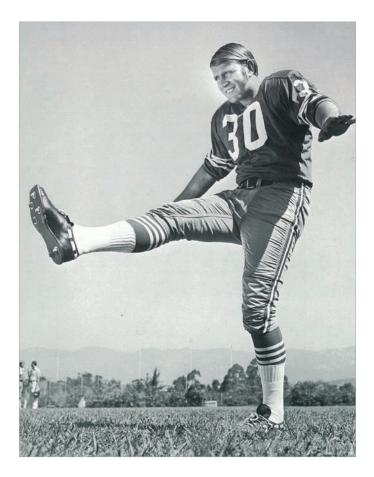

LA RAMS - 49ERS - K

Bruce Gossett signed as a free agent punter with the Los Angeles Rams in 1964 and was selected for the NFL Official All-Rookie Team of '64. Playing with L.A. for six years, Gossett held the Ram record of 120 field goals, which was a NFL record for averaging 20 or more field goals.

He kicked four field goals within a game, repeating this feat for four different games while with the Rams. In 1966 Bruce lead the NFL for scoring and was selected twice for the Pro-Bowl in 1966 and 1969. In 1970, Bruce was traded to the San Francisco 49'ers where he kicked 99 field goals during his five year tenure.

While in the NFL, Bruce played in six championship games, three with the L.A. Rams and three with the San Francisco 49'ers. He held the S.F. 49'er record of five field goals in one game. He was, at the time, the only field goal kicker to average over 20 field goals per year for a career with a 11 year scoring record of: 374 extra points, 219 field goals, and 1031 total points.

Bruce produced the "Bruce Gossett Celebrity Golf Tournament" for 14 years, which benefited the March of Dimes and other local charities. He raised over 1.3 million dollars for the March of Dimes and was humbled when a grant from the national charity was named in his honor.

KENNY GREENE

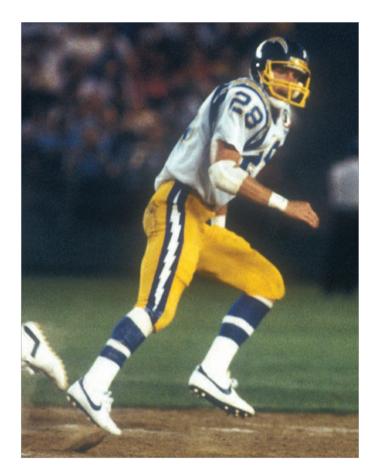

CARDINALS - CHARGERS - DB

Kenny Greene was a small town kid who was given a chance to play football at Washington State University under legendary college coach, Jim Sweeney. Living up to the promise Coach Sweeney had seen in this skinny kid from Omak Washington, Greene lead the Pac 8 conference in interceptions as a Junior. By his senior year, Ken was named All Pac 8 Corner, Defensive MVP of WSU and First Team All-American. He was later named to the All-Century Team at WSU. Ken Greene graduated from Washington State University in 1978 with a Bachelor of Science degree, Minor in Psychology with continuing education towards a Masters in Business Administration.

Drafted in the first round by the St. Louis Cardinals in 1978 – 19th Pick Overall, Greene was named their Rookie of the Year and made several All Rookie Teams. Leading tackler for three of the five years as a Cardinal, having his best year in 1981 with 144 tackles, 7 interceptions and 16 pass break ups. Greene then went on to finish his 7 year NFL career with the San Diego Chargers.

Leaving the playing to the younger generation, Greene went on to coach Division 1 Football for 13 years with Fresno State University, Purdue University and Washington State University. His knowledge of the game and ability to teach his players to compete at the highest level was demonstrated by the continuous stream of prodigies into the NFL, 16 at last count.

Along with his wife Tina, the Greene's finished 2nd on CBS Emmy Winner "The Amazing Race 13", and are currently producing their own show called "Adventures With Vision"— a travel/adventure show that spotlights young people who have overcome difficult challenges in their life, such as cancer, while maintaining a positive attitude. These special individuals have also risen above their circumstances and used their energies to benefit others. A "Pay It Forward" challenge to all of us to raise awareness and money for various charities around the world.

JIM HART

CARDINALS - REDSKINS - QB

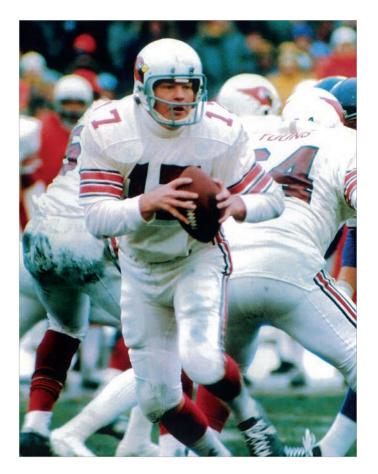

Jim Hart began his football career playing quarterback at Niles West High School in Skokie, Illinois. From there went on to be a record-setting passer at Southern Illinois-Carbondale. Signed as a free agent in 1966 by the St. Louis Cardinals, Hart earned a roster spot as a reserve Quarterback. In 1967 he became a starter four days before the season's opening game.

Hart's 18 seasons with the Cardinals was the secondlongest stint for one player with an NFL team, trailing behind Jim Marshall's 19 seasons with the Vikings. Jim ranks third all-time in the NFL in three passing categories: most passes completed, 2,593 (behind Tarkenton & Unitas); most passes attempted, 5,076 (behind Tarkenton & Unitas); and behind the same two quarterbacks in the most yards gained, 34,665. His 209 touchdown passes ranked ninth all-time on the all-time list.

During Hart's 18 year career with the Cardinals from 1966 through 1983 he guided the Cardinals to three straight 10+ win seasons from 1974 – 1976, including back to back division crowns in 1974 and 1975. This brought him All-Pro honors with him playing four times in the Pro Bowl from 1974 – 1976.

Voted NFC Player of the Year in 1974 when he threw his career-high 20 touchdown passes to lead the Cardinals to its first divisional championship, Hart was also selected as the team's MVP that year as he was in 1973 and 1975. In 1978, Hart set club records for both completions (240) and attempts (477) in one season. On September 16, 1979 Hart completed his 2,000th pass.

After his 18-year career with the Cardinals, and at the bequest of his old friend Coach Gibbs, Hart played one season in 1984 with the Washington Redskins. Playing behind the infamous Joe Theismann as a back-up Quarterback, Hart filled the slot for his final year in the NFL.

In 1976, Hart the Whizzer White Award from the NFL Players Association signifying the NFL's top humanitarian and in 1980 he was given the YMCA Brian Piccolo Award as the most civic-minded athlete in professional sports.

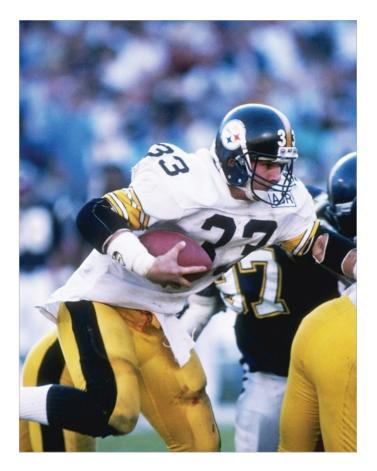

MERRIL HOGE STEELERS – BEARS – RB

Born in 1965, Merril Hoge was raised in Pocatello, Idaho. Electing to stay in his home state, Hoge played for Idaho State University as a running back in the Big Sky Conference. During his college years, he was a three-time all-conference running back.

In 1987, the Pittsburgh Steelers picked Hoge in the 10th round of the NFL Draft. Hoge led the storied Steelers franchise in rushing and receiving in four of his first five years in the NFL. During his third year, he set a record for the most receptions in a season by a running back. He also became one of only two Steelers to rush for more than 100 yards in back to back playoff games, as well as being named Steelers "Iron Man of the Year", two years in a row.

After seven seasons with the Steelers, Hoge signed on as a free agent in 1993 with the Chicago Bears. Playing in only five games with six carries and 13 receptions, Hoge was forced to retire early due to post-concussion syndrome.

In his career, Hoge gained 3,139 rushing yards and 2,133 receiving yards, scoring 34 touchdowns. At the time of his retirement, he had the longest consecutive playing streak in the NFL.

BRIAN KELLEY

GIANTS - LB

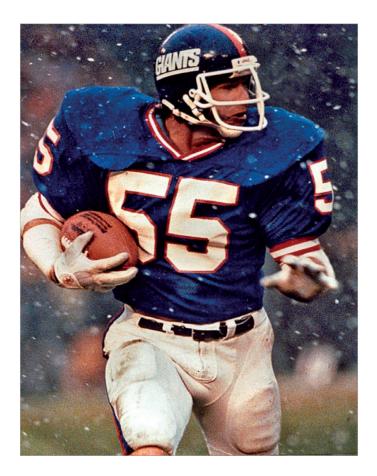

Brian Kelley began the long road to a professional football career at the age of eight as a Pop Warner player in Lancaster, Texas. He went on to attend California Lutheran College, where in 1971, was named the team's MVP while leading it to the NAIA National Championship. During this time Kelley also began his rugby career, and would later lead the Santa Monica Rugby Club to a national championship in 1979.

In 1973, Kelley was selected as a Kodak College All-American, and was drafted into the National Football League, picked by the New York Giants. As a rookie, he played outside linebacker and remained the starter for his 11 years with the team.

In 1976, he was named defensive captain and led the team in tackles through 1980. In 1977, he was voted the team's most valuable player and by 1981 had helped the Giants to their first play-off appearance in 18 years. That year he made 186 tackles and three interceptions. A recipient of the 1982 B'nai B'rith award for football player of the year, Kelley was also presented with the Meadowlands Chamber of Commerce Outstanding Athlete of the Year Award in 1983.

Since retiring from the Giants in 1984, Brian went into the financial industry and worked for the firms Prudential and Wachovia Securities as a financial advisor. Recently Brian has left Wall Street and ventured into the hedge fund industry working with Verity Advisors in sales and marketing.

Brian was recently elected into the College Football Hall of Fame in July of 2010. He was the first ever for California Lutheran University.

FRED "CURLY" MORRISON

BEARS - BROWNS - RB - P

Fred "Curly" Morrison was an Ohio State Varsity "O" football player in 1946, 7, 8 and '49. He was selected the 1950 Rose Bowl MPV during the first televised Rose Bowl between Ohio State win over University of California, 17– 4. Curly was inducted into the Rose Bowl Hall of Fame in 1993 and in the Ohio State Athletic Hall of Fame in 2010.

As a sophomore at Ohio State, he was an end and led the Buckeyes in receptions, with a total of 113 yards. In his junior year he moved to fullback when starter Joe Whistler was injured in the first game of the 1948 season. When Whistler returned, Morrison continued at fullback as a backup, eventually taking over the position as a senior and led the Buckeyes in scoring, with nine touchdowns.

His best rushing game as a college student was against the University of Southern California, in Los Angeles, on October 8, 1949 when he rushed for 134 yards. Later that season he returned to California for the 1950 Rose Bowl game against the University of California. In that game Morrison rushed for 119 yards, and garnered him the MVP award.

A first round choice for the Chicago Bears, Curly was the 10th pick in the 1950 NFL Draft. He was with the Bears for four years, leading the team in rushing two of those years and the top punter for two years in the NFL.

Traded to the Cleveland Browns Curly spent three more years in the NFL, including being a part of the Browns two World Championship teams in 1954 and 1955. During his '55 season he lead the Browns in rushing, was third in the league in total yards gained, had an average per carry of 5.3 yards and played in the Pro Bowl. After seven seasons Curly retired in 1956.

Following his NFL career, Morrison stayed active in football. In 1958 he was the first former NFL player to be hired by a network, CBS, as a play-by-play color commentator.

Along with his wife Sophie they founded the Legends Invitational at Pebble Beach in 1991, overseeing its successful nineteen-year run until selling it to John Lee. This year the tournament celebrates its 24th year.

A SPECIAL THANKS GOES OUT TO DAVID HERRO AND AJA INTERNATIONAL FOR THEIR GENEROUS CONTRIBUTIONS TO MAKE OUR ANNUAL LEGENDS INVITATIONAL AN EXCEPTIONAL EVENT.

It is with great appreciation and gratitude that we thank Mr. John Lee and all the Legends Invitational participants for their support to The National Navy UDT-SEAL Museum and Trident House Charities.

A special thanks to the Legends Invitational's Title Sponsor, IZOD, and contributing sponsors Titanium Fabrication, Pure Insurance, Jack Daniels, Ito En, Distant Lands Coffee, David Herro, and AJA International. We are also grateful for the support from One Shield, Joseph Urbinati, Wells Real Estate Funds, Ted Groesbeck, and 121 Marina.

Through the assistance from great Americans and corporations like the aforementioned it enables us to preserve the SEALs' heritage and aid SEAL families.

It is an honor to be aligned with such a special event and a part of its camaraderie of remarkable participants.

Love your insurance.

Imagine an insurance company that's owned by members and driven by a purpose of doing what's right for them. One that makes its members smarter about risk, helps them reduce their chances of experiencing a claim, and makes them more resilient so that if a claim does happen, they can recover faster and with greater ease. That's PURE. And it's why our members love their insurance.

U.S. NAVY SEAL TRIDENT HOUSE

The National Navy SEAL Museum and Memorial Trident House is a tranquil waterfront residence located directly along the beautiful Indian River, in Sebastian, Florida. The lovely home serves as a critical and complimentary respite for the families of U.S. Navy SEALs who were killed in Line of Duty (LOD). It is also available to battle worn or injured SEALs and their families, as well as to other military personnel with similar needs.

In November of 2012, The Trident House hosted its first family with a very heavy heart. The family had very recently lost their son, who was a U.S. Navy SEAL. He was fighting in the global war against terror in Afghanistan and fighting against the same extended group of extremists who took responsibility for 9/11, an event that changed the way we all live our lives. He was fighting there, so that an event such as 9/11 never happens again...here.

After a long day of travel, the family arrived at the Trident House. They immediately took comfort in the private waterfront setting. During their stay, they attended our annual Muster event and received a personal tour of the National Navy SEAL Museum and Memorial in Fort Pierce, Florida. The last event of their journey was attending the Memorial service for their son, whose name was recently engraved into the black granite walls of the Navy SEAL Museum Memorial.

After the emotional ceremony, their spirits began to lift in the knowledge that the community truly cares. They also found comfort in knowing that their son's legacy and sacrifice will always be honored at the National Navy SEAL Museum and Memorial. In parting, they all commented about how wonderful their stay was in the Trident House and that they plan to return to the Memorial as often as possible.

The National Navy SEAL Museum, Memorial and Trident House are not federally funded. We rely on the generous contributions of our patriotic and grateful supporters like you.
